

FEVER LESS VIRULENT.

Worst Probably Over at New Orleans.

OCEAN SPRINGS FINALLY FREE.

The Disease Breaks Out at a New Place in Mississippi—People Making Arrangements to Return to New Orleans. Reports From Other Points.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5.—The state board of health official bulletin is as follows: "Cases of yellow fever, 24; deaths, none.

"Total cases to date, 341; total deaths to date, 36; total recovered, 103; total under treatment, 202."

The death rate has fallen to a trifling excess over 10½ per cent, and the prospects for an early stamping out of the disease has been considerably brightened.

There is no indication that the sickness will assume an epidemic form. All fear of that has disappeared and people who have their families at other points are beginning to make arrangements to bring them back.

At a special meeting of the board of health it was decided that the ship bringing Sicilian immigrants here shall be detained at quarantine at the mouth of the river until further orders, and a notice to this effect, was sent to Collector Wilkinson.

Six days have passed since Ocean Springs has had any yellow fever. If the present immunity from disease continues until Friday the board of health will officially declare the Mississippi resort free of fever. Ocean Springs was the first to contract the disease and will probably be the first to get rid of it.

TOWN ALMOST DESTROYED.

Only Five Buildings Left After a Fire at Austin, Pa.

AUSTIN, Pa., Oct. 5.—Fire which broke out in Weed's livery barn on Turner street in five hours' time destroyed every building in town but five. Turner street was the principal residence street of the town, and probably 500 people are homeless. The fire was started by a load of hay being run into a gas jet. In all about 100 buildings were burned, mostly residences, among the larger losses being the Methodist church, Presbyterian church, opera house, Welch's meat market, Hellwig's drug store, Gallup's livery and Weed's livery. The loss is placed by insurance experts at from $150,000 to $200,000.

CHAIRMAN JONES IN CHICAGO.

He Says the Chicago Platform Will Be Reaffirmed in 1900.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Senator J. K. Jones, chairman of the national Democratic committee, and National Committeeman William J. Stone of Missouri have arrived in Chicago, after a week's fishing in the Northern Wisconsin lakes. Neither had any opinions to offer on the political situation in Ohio and New York, saying they had not seen any newspaper during their outing. Senator Jones read with interest an interview with W. J. Bryan on his position in relation to the candidate and platform for 1900, and said he thought Bryan had stated the thing about right.

"The Chicago platform is good sound Democratic doctrine," said Senator Jones. "and you may rest assured that it will be reaffirmed in 1900 and a candidate nominated to match."

NEW MOVE BY ROBISON.

He Has Capitalist Shipper Placed Under Arrest at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5.—Mr. John J. Shipherd, the local capitalist and member of the firm of Charles H. Potter & Co., is under arrest charged with embezzlement. Mr. Frank De Haas Robison swore to the allegations contained in the warrant.

Following close upon the issue of the warrant came a petition filed in the common pleas court, asking for a receiver for the firm of Charles H. Potter & Co., on a claim of $991,000. This action was likewise brought by Mr. Frank De Haas Robison. Judge Ong appointed Alexis Taylor receiver, exacting a bond of $25,000, which was furnished.

The claim for which a receiver is asked is alleged to be due for street railway stock in the Fort Wayne Consolidated Street Railway company, which Mr. Robison says the firm owes him.

In the warrant for Mr. Shipherd's arrest Mr. Robison says Mr. Shipherd held money and property to the amount and value of $183,286; $112,000 worth of first mortgage bonds of the Fort Wayne Consolidated Street Railroad company, of which he has made no accounting. The value of the bonds is placed at $95,000.

Mr. Shipherd appeared in court in custody of a constable.

Mr. Robison alleges in his petition that the defendants are hopelessly insolvent; that they owe 20 different banks and as many individuals, aggregating a sum of more than $2,000,000 borrowed money.

To a reporter Mr. Shipherd said: "This thing has been hanging fire for over a year. For years I have worked hard. I have been up and down the ladder time and again. I am a poor man now without a cent in the world. Since my failure I have been making just enough money to keep my family."

"Frank Robison knows that I am penniless. I acknowledge that I owe him money, but I do not owe him a cent that I ever obtained fraudulently, as he alleges in the warrant."

"When I failed last year I turned over every cent I had in the world, amounting to over $2,500,000 in securities, to my creditors. Since then their market value has gone down."

"I was made president of the Fort Wayne Consolidated Railway company, with full power to finance its operations. The panic of '95 and '96 came on and in my effort to weather it I did everything in my power. If I had won the Robisons would have declared me a Napoleon of finance. I lost and this is the result."

Mr. Shipherd was the representative in Ohio of the late Henry S. Ives during the latter's celebrated railway deals a few years ago.

Mr. Shipherd was held in custody until released on $10,000 bail. He claims he has done a business of $13,000,000 in 14 years. He says he does not know how much he owes Robison. He claims Robison's action has ruined him and that he is being made a scapegoat. Shipherd and Robison have been closely associated for years in street railway enterprises.

PANHANDLE TRAIN WRECKED.

Jumped the Track Near Piqua, O.—Three Railroaders Injured.

PIQUA, O., Oct. 5.—Panhandle passenger train No. 21 westbound has been wrecked two and a half miles east of this city. The train was coming down grade at the rate of 40 miles an hour and in crossing the frog of the Jordan switch left the track. The engineer had the presence of mind to shut off the steam and apply the airbrakes. The engine continued, notwithstanding, at a terrific rate of speed, tearing up the tracks and plowing the ground at a frightful rate.

For 570 feet the engine bumped over the ties and then went into the ditch at the side of the main track. The tender went in the opposite direction while the baggage car was thrown crosswise of the track. Two day coaches were derailed and crushed together. The Pullman cars were also derailed, but they escaped with little damage. Eli Carroll of Logansport, the engineer in charge, was hurled 50 feet and fell on a portion of his cab. Fireman John Baird of Logansport was pitched 75 feet over into a field.

The engineer sustained a terrible scalp wound, remaining unconscious for some time. The fireman was hurt internally. Both were brought to this city and placed under the care of a physician. C. S. McGown, the baggagemaster whose home is at Logansport, was injured about the hip as the result of being penned in between trunks.

The wreck crew from Bradford and also from Columbus were immediately summoned. A special train was provided to carry the passengers, all of whom escaped with but slight injuries to their destination.

AUTONOMY FOR CUBA.

Sagasta Will Offer the Same Canada Enjoys.

THE INSURGENTS SHOULD ACCEPT.

This the Opinion in Administration Circles at Washington—A Commission to Be Appointed to Arrange Claims Between This Country and Spain.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—One result of the formation of a Sagasta cabinet in Spain, it is believed, will be the granting of amnesty to most, if not all, of the American prisoners held in Cuba, and the pardon of many Cubans condemned to imprisonment in the island of Ceuta. Pending the completion of the Sagasta cabinet there has been no official intimation that such action would be taken, but it is said to be a natural and necessary part of the new Spanish policy involving the withdrawal of General Weyler and the adoption of more conciliatory plans. The Competitor prisoners, it is expected, will be released early, and Miss Cisneros also.

Concerning pending claims, such as that in the case of L. Ruiz, it is said that a commission probably will be proposed to deal with all claims arising during the rebellion, and there are intimations that steps toward the creation of such a commission are now under way.

Although there is continued reticence at the state department, concerning Spanish-Cuban affairs it is understood that the government has been informed that Spain will offer autonomy to Cuba similar to that enjoyed by Canada and in administration circles the prevalent opinion seems to be that if a full measure of real autonomy is offered it should be accepted by the Cubans. The incoming of the Sagasta cabinet is welcomed by the administration, which several weeks ago was apprehensive of a possible early disturbance of our friendly relations with Spain.

SAGASTA'S CABINET.

New Ministers Sworn In—Leading Diplomat Predicts Weyler Will Be Recalled—Sagasta Will Talk in a More Conciliatory Way to Woodford.

MADRID, Oct. 5.—The new ministry is constituted as follows: Senor Sagasta, president of the council of ministers.

Senor Gullon, minister for foreign affairs.

Senor Groizard, minister of justice.

General Correa, minister of war.

Admiral Bermejo, minister of marine.

Senor Capdepon, minister of interior.

Senor Puigcerver, minister of finance.

Count Aiguena, minister of public works.

Senor Moret, minister for the colonies.

The ministers after an informal meeting proceeded to the palace and took the oaths of office.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—A leading London diplomat, discussing the crisis in Spanish affairs, said:

"I believe the change in the Spanish cabinet will result in the recall of Captain General Weyler from Cuba and the substitution of Marshal Blanco for him, because Sagasta (the new premier) personally dislikes Weyler."

"Sagasta will probably discuss Cuba with General Woodford in a more conciliatory manner than his predecessor, but he is not likely to do more than that. Sagasta has been informed on authority that the Cubans will accept autonomy and the withdrawal of the Spanish troops, although they have protested that they will not do so, but I doubt if Spain will consent to these measures."

A FORMER MAYOR TALKS.

Hewitt Thinks Tracy Should Withdraw in Favor of Low.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Abram S. Hewitt, one of the organizers of the County Democracy, in 1879, former congressman and mayor of New York during 1887 and 1889, has been interviewed on the political situation and campaign for mayor of Greater New York. Mr. Hewitt said:

"I am an old man and a back number, but if any message from me will have influence at this crisis I shall gladly send it. The only issue is whether New York is fit for self-government; whether a majority of her citizens are honest: will they give the city good government by electing Mr. Low; will they turn it over to plunderers by returning Tammany to power; or will they put into effect the crazy vagaries of socialism by electing Henry George."

"The Republicans should have sufficient patriotism to withdraw General Tracy. He is a man for whom I have the highest regard, but his position is utterly indefensible. I believe in his heart General Tracy wants Mr. Low elected; yet there he stands the tool of Senator Platt, the only factor in the fight who can prevent the election of Mr. Low."

THE MANITOBA PRAIRIE FIRES.

More Stories of Destitution—Appeals For Aid.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 5.—Reports continue to pour in from all parts of the province of destruction by prairie fires. In some districts not a farmer escaped loss by the fiery wave that swept over the country. Appeals were made in all the city churches for aid for those who sustained loss in the bush country east of the city. This was where the two women and five children lost their lives and many other families had thrilling escapes from fires which hedged them in on all sides. Several families lost homes, crops and live stock and as they are new settlers are left destitute.

The fire ran to within 100 yards of one of the principal resident portions of the city south of the Assinaboine and firemen had to be called out to beat out the threatening flames.

OVER 15,000 DROWNED

Disastrous Floods Near the Capital of China.

THOUSANDS ARE WITHOUT HOMES.

Sixty Villages That Contained Over 80,000 Inhabitants Have Been Destroyed. Crops Ruined—The People Praying For a Cessation of the Heavy Rains.

TACOMA, Oct. 5.—The steamer Victoria brings news of the most disastrous floods that have visited China for many years. Sixty village near Tung Chou, containing over 80,000 inhabitants, have been destroyed by floods and the people drowned or forced to flee.

There is no means of finding out how many thousands have been drowned, but the number is estimated by Chinese authorities at 15,000 to 20,000.

The flooded district is within 12 miles of Peking, the capital of China. As a rule Chinese officials make little stir when a calamity like this happens, but the proximity of disaster has resulted in its being brought to the attention of the emperor, who has ordered that all possible relief be given.

Survivors from the villages nearest Peking have been allowed such shelter as they can find on the city walls, but thousands are without protection against the rain, which continues to fall.

The distress of these people is most pitiable. Public spirited and wealthy men of Peking and Tung Chou are actively assisting the authorities in providing them with food.

The floods have greatly damaged a large number of estates belonging to Peking nobles. The unusual rains began July 23 and continued until Aug. 15.

The crops in the flooded district were destroyed. The prefects, local magistrates and people of the flooded district prayed for the cessation of the rain seven days before they were finally driven out of their homes.

Early in September high officials of Peking and Tien Sien suddenly forbade the slaughter of cattle, their object being to appease the wrath of the gods and stop the rains, the proclamations to this effect were issued.

The result was to cut off the entire meat supply, which led foreign consuls to protest against the prohibition and to report the situation to the foreign ministers at Peking. It is claimed that the action of the officials constitutes a violation of the treaty rights.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 5.—Reports continue to pour in from all parts of the province of destruction by prairie fires. In some districts not a farmer escaped loss by the fiery wave that swept over the country. Appeals were made in all the city churches for aid for those who sustained loss in the bush country east of the city. This was where the two women and five children lost their lives and many other families had thrilling escapes from fires which hedged them in on all sides. Several families lost homes, crops and live stock and as they are new settlers are left destitute.

The fire ran to within 100 yards of one of the principal resident portions of the city south of the Assiniboine and firemen had to be called out to beat out the threatening flames.

President's Public Reception.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The president yesterday renewed the receptions given on Monday to the general public and shook hands with about 300 visitors in the east room. He also saw for the first time all persons who sought an audience. He was not able to give much time to each, but saw everyone for a few moments. Bishop Arnett (colored) of Ohio called.

Wilson Murder Still a Mystery.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—The murder of Librarian William C. Wilson, who was battered to death on Aug. 16, remains as mysterious as ever. The grand jury ignored the bill against Marion Stuyvesant, the colored porter at the library, and he was released, there being no evidence to warrant his detention.

OVER 15,000 DROWNED

Disastrous Floods Near the Capital of China.

THOUSANDS ARE WITHOUT HOMES.

Sixty Villages That Contained Over 80,000 Inhabitants Have Been Destroyed. Crops Ruined—The People Praying For a Cessation of the Heavy Rains.

TACOMA, Oct. 5.—The steamer Victoria brings news of the most disastrous floods that have visited China for many years. Sixty village near Tung Chou, containing over 80,000 inhabitants, have been destroyed by floods and the people drowned or forced to flee.

There is no means of finding out how many thousands have been drowned, but the number is estimated by Chinese authorities at 15,000 to 20,000.

The flooded district is within 12 miles of Peking, the capital of China. As a rule Chinese officials make little stir when a calamity like this happens, but the proximity of disaster has resulted in its being brought to the attention of the emperor, who has ordered that all possible relief be given.

Survivors from the villages nearest Peking have been allowed such shelter as they can find on the city walls, but thousands are without protection against the rain, which continues to fall.

The distress of these people is most pitiable. Public spirited and wealthy men of Peking and Tung Chou are actively assisting the authorities in providing them with food.

The floods have greatly damaged a large number of estates belonging to Peking nobles. The unusual rains began July 23 and continued until Aug. 15.

The crops in the flooded district were destroyed. The prefects, local magistrates and people of the flooded district prayed for the cessation of the rain seven days before they were finally driven out of their homes.

Early in September high officials of Peking and Tien Sien suddenly forbade the slaughter of cattle, their object being to appease the wrath of the gods and stop the rains, the proclamations to this effect were issued.

The result was to cut off the entire meat supply, which led foreign consuls to protest against the prohibition and to report the situation to the foreign ministers at Peking. It is claimed that the action of the officials constitutes a violation of the treaty rights.

Election in Connecticut.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 5.—In Connecticut's "little town" elections with but a few isolated towns to be heard from the indications are that the Republicans generally held their own, making enough slight gains in numerous places to counterbalance the larger Democratic gains in a few towns.

Atkinson Forgery Case.

GLENVILLE, W. Va., Oct. 5.—Interest in the Atkinson forgery case remains unabated since the decision of Judge Blizard overruling the demurrer. Both sides have been busily engaged preparing for trial on the merits of the case. The case started this morning.

LOCATE ROAD AT LAST

Council and Commissioners
Finally Agree.

WILL BE DONE NEXT WEEK

President Peach Learned a Number of Things While He Was In Lisbon—No Desire to Delay the Improvement at the Laughlin Pottery.

A special session of council was held last evening with every member present but Mr. Horwell and Doctor Marshall.

The meeting was called to order by President Peach, who explained that the object was to pass an ordinance regulating the moving of buildings and to take some action in regard to the location of the river road to East End.

Clerk Hanley read the ordinance relating to the moving of buildings. It provides that no person shall move any building without a permit from the clerk, shall file a bond of $500 for the use of parties in repairing damages, and shall keep the city free from all expense.

At no time shall a building be permitted to remain in one street for a longer period than three days, and at all times
a passageway for at least one vehicle shall be left in the street. Any violation of the ordinance is punishable by a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $100, and the cost of prosecution.

Upon motion of Mr. Stewart the rules were suspended and the ordinance passed unanimously.

Mr. Stewart said he would like to hear the report of the committee who interviewed the commissioners in regard to the river road, and Mr. Peach said:
"Mr. Olmhausen and myself met with the commissioners in Lisbon today, and we were able to trace the river road back to 1820. There have been a number of surveys made since then, but everything shows that the road starts at Beaver bridge and ends at Yellow Creek. The last survey was made in 1891, at the solicitation of the commissioners, and the court appointed three disinterested free holders to view the road and locate it. They didn't know anything about it. The commissioners guaranteed today to send the county surveyor down here to locate the road for all time to come, and he will be here Wednesday, and I want council to instruct the city engineer to accompany him. I am thankful we have got the commissioners interested in our behalf.
The time has come for the city to know what it owns."

A motion was passed instructing the city engineer to accompany and assist the county surveyor in locating the road.

Mr. Stuart said the Laughlin pottery company wanted to build and the survey might delay them, but Mr.
Peach said the work would be done this week. Mr. Laughlin said any great delay on the part of the city would mean a delay of nine months to them, and spoke of his conference with the water works trustees in regard to moving the water mains, saying this would be the greatest delay as they thought it would take them two weeks to move the line.

Mr. Peach said he thought it was the duty of council to know where the road was if the city had one.

There was a great deal of discussion as to who would pay for moving the water mains, and finally Mr. Olmhausen ended it by stating that there would be plenty of time to talk of that after the location of the road was determined.
The question was dropped with the understanding that a special meeting will be called as soon as the survey is completed.

The county surveyor will also locate the Lisbon road while here. Mr.
Olmhausen stated the property owners in Jethro street desired to lay a nine foot sidewalk and leave a grass plot of three feet. They were granted the desired permission, and council adjourned.

Going to the Reunion.

It is expected that a large number of Grand Army men of this city will go to Wellsville next Friday evening to attend the reunion of the Third Ohio.
Cars will be in waiting at 6:30 o'clock,
and the campfire will be over in time for the veterans to return before the last street car leaves. General Beatty, of Columbus, will speak.

mediate ticket stations on Pennsylvania

REEDER CASE HEARD.

The Defendants Decided to Enter Bail
For Court.

EASTON, Pa., Oct. 5.—The habeas corpus proceedings in the case of ex-Secretary of State Frank Reeder of Easton, Assemblyman Webster C.
Weiss and Maurice C. Luckenbach of Bethlehem, charged with conspiracy to bribe Assemblyman Weiss to vote for John Wanamaker for United States senator, began before Judge Scott in the Northampton county court, and resulted in the defendants entering bail for the November term of court.

When court opened District Attorney
Fox moved to discharge the order for a hearing on the ground that the defendants had surrendered themselves and consequently did not come under the classification of defendants for whose relief the habeas corpus was intended.

In reply to this, counsel for the defense filed an affidavit made by Charles Chobert, a special officer at the Hotel
Stanton, Philadelphia, who furnished the information on which the warrants of arrest were based. The affidavit filed was to the effect that Chobert had signed the information under the misapprehension that it was against Detective Tillard of Pen Argyle, and not against Reeder, Weiss or Luckenbach.

The name of Fred A. Van Valkenburg for that of Charles Chobert as prosecutor was then offered by the prosecution, and after a recess the court directed that the substitution be placed on file.

The court directed the hearing to proceed with the understanding that the prosecution only could present testimony. Upon this announcement Congressman Kirkpatrick stated that the defendants rather than not have an opportunity to present their side of the case would enter bail for the November term of court. It was so ordered, and that ended the matter.

BIG DISTILLERY CLOSED.

The Government Will Fight an Injunction Is used by Judge Jackson.

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 5.—Acting under instructions from the secretary of the treasury, Internal Revenue Collector A. B. White has closed the big Hannis distillery pending the decision of Judge Jackson of the United States court on a motion to perpetuate the injunction enjoining the collector from assigning to duty at the distillery any officers other than those employed there. The usual changes in assignments were made by the commissioner of internal revenue on Oct. 1.

Democrats who were supplanted by others who were assigned, but who were not dismissed from the service, applied for the injunction, which was granted. As the injunction prohibited anyone from assuming the duties and as on Oct. 2 the storekeeper and the gauger were suspended from office by the secretary of the treasury for insubordination, there is no gauger or storekeeper in charge of the distillery.
The distillery, which has several million dollars worth of whisky in bond, cannot be supplied under the injunction with the officers to withdraw goods and had to be ordered closed down until the case is finally decided in the courts. The government will resist the injunction.

PREACHER HAS GUN HANDY.

Claims Labor Leaders Interfered With His Housebuilding and Assaulted Him.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—Rev. R. J. Kellogg, pastor of a little Congregational church in Denver side, not far from East St. Louis on the Illinois side of the river, is building a parsonage under the protection of a double barreled shotgun.

The congregation was too poor to build him a house, so he said he would build it himself with what help he could get from the congregation and others. A. C. Palmer, an officer of the carpenters' union, demanded that union men be employed.

"I have no objection to employing union men," said Rev. Kellogg, "but I will not discharge my neighbors to make places for others."

While at work alone on the parsonage Mr. Kellogg has been assaulted by a gang of seven men, who compelled him to discontinue work for the time being. He secured a shotgun and hereafter he will take it to the building and keep it handy for use should another attack be made on him.

A $50,000 FIRE.

A Number of Buildings Wiped Out at Georgetown.

GEORGETOWN, Oct. 5.—Fire here destroyed the following buildings:

The News-Democrat office, $10,000, fully insured; William Flinn's carriage factory; Charles Gruswald's grocery; Al Bright & Co's. warehouses; George King's furniture store; George Har-nold's bakery; A. G. Markley's hardware store; the public school building.
Most of these establishments were in the Duffy block. The total loss is probably $50,000. Insurance other than that mentioned is not known. It started in Flinn's carriage factory.

LUETGERT MAY TESTIFY.

Some Probability of His Going on the Stand Today.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—An unexpected turn of affairs has occurred in the Luetgert trial. The defense suddenly dropped its line of expert testimony and put on witnesses to impeach the evidence of witnesses for the state. It was apparent that ex-Judge Vincent chief counsel for the defense, had at last tired of the expert evidence. The testimony of each succeeding witness was practically a repetition.

Luertgert may go on the stand today

CHAPTER IV.

SUSPICIOUS CIRCUMSTANCES.

Lieutenant Blunt's position on this bright July morning was most embarrassing. Personally he had known the pet trumpeter of B troop less than a year, for, as was said in the previous chapter, in point of actual experience on the frontier the boy was the superior of the young West Pointer, who had joined only the preceding autumn.
Finding young Fred so great a favorite among the officers and men, Mr. Blunt was quite ready to accept the general verdict, although his first impression of the youngster was that he was a trifle spoiled. On the other hand, no other man in the troop had so favorably impressed the new officer as the "left principal guide," Sergeant Dawson, whose dashing horsemanship, fine figure and carriage and sharp, soldierly ways had attracted his attention at the first outset. Then Dawson's manner to him was so scrupulously deferential and soldierly on all occasions—sometimes the old war worn sergeants would be a trifle supercilious with green subalterns—that Blunt's moderate amount of vanity was touched. He was always glad when his turn came round as officer of the guard to find Sergeant Dawson on the detail, and he recalled, when he came to think over the events of his first half year with the regiment that very summer, that it was when on guard he began to imagine Fred Waller was "somewhat spoiled." Twice the boy "marched on" as orderly trumpeter when he and Dawson were on the guard detail for the day, and both times the sergeant had found fault with the musician and had most respectfully and diplomatically, but in that semiconfidential manner which shrewd old soldiers so well know how to assume to very young subalterns, given Mr. Blunt to understand that the boy "needed looking after." Months later, when Blunt and Rayburn were discussing the probabilities of promotion, when the sergeant major of the regiment took his discharge and there was lively competition among the soldiers for this the finest noncommissioned post in the regiment, Blunt warmly advocated Dawson's claim. "He is the nastiest sergeant in the whole command," he said, "and the smartest one I know."

"Oh, yes," answered Rayburn with a certain superiority of manner and a quiet sarcasm that provoked the junior officer, "there's no question about Dawson's smartness. One after another every 'plebe' in the regiment starts in with the same enthusiasm about Dawson. I had it myself about eight years ago.
But the trouble with him is he isn't a stayer. He can't stand prosperity."

But Blunt preferred to hold to his own views and his faith in the second sergeant of the troop. And so it happened that on this eventful morning he sent Sergeant Graham at once to investigate as to the amounts stolen during the night and directed that Sergeant Dawson, who was in command of the herd and picket guard, should come to him immediately.

The sun was just rising above the low, treeless ridges on the horizon as the lieutenant stood erect and looked about him. Close at hand the Niobrara—"the Running Water"—was brawling over its stony shallows, and the smoke of tiny cook fires was floating upward into the keen, crisp morning air. Northward the slopes were bare and treeless, too, but closely carpeted with the dense growth of buffalo grass. Only a few yards out from the bivouac, hopped and side lined, the troop horses were cropping the still juicy herbage, and three or four soldiers, carbines in hand and garbed in their light blue overcoats, were posted well out beyond the herd on every side, watching the valley far and near for any signs of Indian coming.
Below the bivouac and farther from the Laramie road was an old log hut, once used as a ranch and "bar" for thirsty souls traversing the well worn way to the reservation, but the tide of travel had first shifted to the Sidney route and then been stemmed entirely, so far as the line to or near the agencies was concerned, and the proprietor had taken himself and his fiery poison to better paying fields.

Far away to the southwest the blue cone of Laramie peak stood boldly against the sky. Nearer at hand, though a day's ride away, old Rawhide Butte rose sturdily from the midst of surrounding prairie slopes. Up stream, among some sparse cottonwood, a bit of reddish color among the branches caught the lieutenant's quick eye. Some Indian brave, wrapped in his blanket, had been laid to rest there out of reach of the snarling coyotes, one of whom could be dimly discerned slinking away under the bank, just out of easy rifle range.

Off to the south lay the same bold, barren, desolate looking expanse of rolling prairie. Blunt could not suppress a shudder as he thought of the terrible risk the boy had run in his mad break for the settlements beyond the Platte.
Of course he could go nowhere else

North, east and west, all was Indian land, and no lone white man could live there. Of course he was making for the cattle ranges and settlements in Nebraska. Such, at least, was the lieutenant's theory. He had spent only one year on the frontier, but had been there long enough to know that among the cowboys, ranchmen and especially among the riffraff ever hanging about the small towns and settlements a deserter from the army was apt to be welcomed and protected if he had money, arms or a good horse. Once plundered of all he possessed, the luck-less fellow might then be turned over to the nearest post and the authorized reward of $30 claimed for his apprehension, but if well armed and sober
the deserter had little trouble in making his way through the toughest mining camps and settlements.

CHAPTER V.

TRAILING THE TRAITOR.

Fred Waller knew all the valley of the North Platte as well as he did the trails around Sanders and Red Buttes, and if he could succeed in eluding the Indian war parties he would have no difficulty in fording the river, or swimming if necessary, and, with the start he must have had, his light weight and powerful horse, it would be next to impossible to catch him, even if they could follow his trail. Besides were they not ordered to remain at Niobrara until Charlton's return?

The more Mr. Blunt thought of the matter the more worried and perplexed he became. Anywhere else he might have sent a sergeant with a couple of men in pursuit, but here it would be exposing them to almost certain death. It was some minutes before Sergeant Dawson came in answer to the summons.
Blunt could see the troopers gathered about the first sergeant, excitedly discussing the affair and bemoaning their individual losses. Graham was noting the amounts on a slip of paper, and his fine face was pale with distress. "Is that all now, men?" he asked as he completed the list. Then he sharply turned away and once more approached his young commander.

"Lieutenant," he said, halting and raising his hand in salute, "it isn't quite so bad as I feared, but bad enough.
Sergeant Farron, Corporal Watts and I are the principal losers, besides Sergeant Dawson. Three of the men who went into the agency on pass just after we were paid had left most of their money with me, and that is gone. I had it with my own in the flat wallet I always carried in the inside pocket of my hunting shirt. You can see, sir, how it was done." And the sergeant displayed a long, clean cut through the Indian tanned buckskin. "It took a sharp knife and a light hand to do that, for I'm not a heavy sleeper. Farron, Watts and I were sleeping side by side just over there on the bank, and they heard nothing all the night. But will the lieutenant look at this handkerchief, sir? Is it chloroformed? I feel dull and heavy, as though I had been drugged. He couldn't have got it from me any other way."

Blunt took the bandanna and sniffed it cautiously and then turned it over and curiously inspected it. There was certainly an odor of chloroform about it
—a strong odor.

"Whose is this?" he asked. "I do not remember seeing any of the men wearing one like this."

"None of them owns it, sir. I've asked the whole party but Sergeant Dawson and the men on guard. They have these cheap red things for sale at the store
there at the Red Cloud Agency, but none of the troop have I ever seen wearing them. They are too small for neck handkerchiefs. Dawson is out yet, trying to locate the trail. I've sent Robbins for him." And the sergeant looked anxiously away southward, searching the prairie with a world of pain and trouble in his eyes.

"What could possibly have induced the boy to turn scoundrel all at once?"
asked the lieutenant. "It will break his old father's heart."

"I can't account for it, sir. He has been as honest and square as a boy could be ever since his enlistment, but the men tell me that he has been spending a good deal of time over in the post whenever we camped there, and I am afraid, from what Donovan says, that he has been gambling with the young fellows at the band quarters. There's a hard lot in there, I'm told, and the old hands encourage the boys to get all they can out of strangers, and then they turn to and fleece the boys. It is about $400 he has taken. A man knows that will last but a little while on the frontier, but to a boy it seems a big pile."

Then, rapidly approaching, the bounding hoofs of a troop horse were heard.
Blunt eagerly turned and saw Sergeant Dawson galloping toward them down the north bank. Reining in so suddenly as almost to throw his panting bay upon his haunches, he vaulted lightly to the ground and stood before the lieutenant, his face beaded with sweat and his eyes glaring.

"Which way has he gone? Could you tell?"

"Yes, sir. I trailed him out across the prairie yonder for 300 yards or so.
Then he took the Laramie road, and there the hoof tracks are all confused, but I knew he would never keep that line very long, and I'm almost certain
I found the place where he turned off, a mile beyond the ford and well over the bluffs."

The man who indulges in athletic exercises is usually a healthy man. While athletics, moderately indulged in, are conducive to longevity, they are not absolutely necessary. If, when a man feels out of sorts and nervous, and realizes that he is suffering from biliousness or indigestion, he will take the right remedy, he can always keep himself in good health.

Many serious illnesses have their inception in indigestion or in an inactive liver.
Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a sure, safe, speedy and permanent cure for all disorders of the digestion. It also cures all of the maladies that have their inception in these disorders. It is a prompt cure for giddiness, sick headache, pain in the stomach, fullness and swelling after meals, dizziness and drowsiness, cold chills, flush-ings of heat, loss of appetite, shortness of breath, blotches on the skin, disturbed sleep, frightful dreams and nervous and trembling sensations. It makes the appetite keen and hearty, the digestion perfect, the liver active and fills the blood with life-giving elements that build healthy tissue.
It is a cure for nervous exhaustion and How carefully mother guards the secrets of her boys and girls. At night, as she carefully tucks the bed-clothes around them, she chides and warns that mother will be angry if they repeat last night's offense, softly saying to herself,

"It's only a habit, but I must break them or it." This is mother's mistake. The children cannot help it, and sweet, clean, dry beds can be the resting place of every child when it is understood that the cause is not a habit, but a weakness that can be cured. Active life of the little ones tends to weakening the kidneys, and weak kidneys means inability to retain the urine. This is a condition, not a habit, and should have the same prompt attention you would give to the marked symptoms of any disease. One Doan's Kidney Pills taken twice a day and at bedtime will strengthen the kidneys of a child, and in a short time there will be no cause to scold, for the so-called habit will disappear promptly.

her endorsement to our words:

pect street, says: "I got Doan's Kidney Pills for my little boy, thirteen years of age, who has been, since he was nine years old, troubled with a weakness of the urinary organs. At that time he was taken with spasms that physicians attributed to worms. These were checked in time, but his kidneys did not regain their strength, and non-retention of urine while sleeping has embarrassed the little fellow very much and caused very much annoyance to me. We have had him treated by physicians without his obtaining any relief in that particular way, and you can realize how pleased we are to be able to check it by using Doan's Kidney Pills. Immediately we began his kidneys grew stronger. I know that there are many children that way, and that mothers would be only too glad to learn of a cure. I can, without any hesitancy, recommend those pills for that, and you

Acids and the Teeth.

It is a dentist's word that acids are quite as injurious as sweets to the teeth, unless their traces are promptly remov-

need the brush as certainly as do candy

LOCATE ROAD AT LAST

Council and Commissioners
Finally Agree.

WILL BE DONE NEXT WEEK

President Peach Learned a Number of Things While He Was in Lisbon—No Desire to Delay the Improvement at the Laughlin Pottery.

A special session of council was held last evening with every member present but Mr. Horwell and Doctor Marshall.

The meeting was called to order by President Peach, who explained that the object was to pass an ordinance regulating the moving of buildings and to take some action in regard to the location of the river road to East End.

Clerk Hanley read the ordinance relating to the moving of buildings. It provides that no person shall move any building without a permit from the clerk, shall file a bond of $500 for the use of parties in repairing damages, and shall keep the city free from all expense. At no time shall a building be permitted to remain in one street for a longer period than three days, and at all times a passageway for at least one vehicle shall be left in the street. Any violation of the ordinance is punishable by a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $100, and the cost of prosecution.

Upon motion of Mr. Stewart the rules were suspended and the ordinance passed unanimously.

Mr. Stewart said he would like to hear the report of the committee who interviewed the commissioners in regard to the river road, and Mr. Peach said: "Mr. Olmhausen and myself met with the commissioners in Lisbon today, and we were able to trace the river road back to 1820. There have been a number of surveys made since then, but everything shows that the road starts at Beaver bridge and ends at Yellow Creek. The last survey was made in 1891, at the solicitation of the commissioners, and the court appointed three disinterested free holders to view the road and locate it. They didn't know anything about it. The commissioners guaranteed today to send the county surveyor down here to locate the road for all time to come, and he will be here Wednesday, and I want council to instruct the city engineer to accompany him. I am thankful we have got the commissioners interested in our behalf. The time has come for the city to know what it owns."

A motion was passed instructing the city engineer to accompany and assist the county surveyor in locating the road.

Mr. Stuart said the Laughlin pottery company wanted to build and the survey might delay them, but Mr. Peach said the work would be done this week. Mr. Laughlin said any great delay on the part of the city would mean a delay of nine months to them, and spoke of his conference with the water works trustees in regard to moving the water mains, saying this would be the greatest delay as they thought it would take them two weeks to move the line.

Mr. Peach said he thought it was the duty of council to know where the road was if the city had one.

There was a great deal of discussion as to who would pay for moving the water mains, and finally Mr. Olmhausen ended it by stating that there would be plenty of time to talk of that after the location of the road was determined. The question was dropped with the understanding that a special meeting will be called as soon as the survey is completed.

The county surveyor will also locate the Lisbon road while here. Mr. Olmhausen stated the property owners in Jethro street desired to lay a nine foot sidewalk and leave a grass plot of three feet. They were granted the desired permission, and council adjourned.

Going to the Reunion.

It is expected that a large number of Grand Army men of this city will go to Wellsville next Friday evening to attend the reunion of the Third Ohio. ## REEDER CASE HEARD.

The Defendants Decided to Enter Bail For Court.

EASTON, Pa., Oct. 5.—The habeas corpus proceedings in the case of ex-Secretary of State Frank Reeder of Easton, Assemblyman Webster C. Weiss and Maurice C. Luckenbach of Bethlehem, charged with conspiracy to bribe Assemblyman Weiss to vote for John Wanamaker for United States senator, began before Judge Scott in the Northampton county court, and resulted in the defendants entering bail for the November term of court.

When court opened District Attorney Fox moved to discharge the order for a hearing on the ground that the defendants had surrendered themselves and consequently did not come under the classification of defendants for whose relief the habeas corpus was intended.

In reply to this, counsel for the defense filed an affidavit made by Charles Chobert, a special officer at the Hotel Stanton, Philadelphia, who furnished the information on which the warrants of arrest were based. The affidavit filed was to the effect that Chobert had signed the information under the misapprehension that it was against Detective Tillard of Pen Argyle, and not against Reeder, Weiss or Luckenbach.

The name of Fred A. Van Valkenburg for that of Charles Chobert as prosecutor was then offered by the prosecution, and after a recess the court directed that the substitution be placed on file.

The court directed the hearing to proceed with the understanding that the prosecution only could present testimony. Upon this announcement Congressman Kirkpatrick stated that the defendants rather than not have an opportunity to present their side of the case would enter bail for the November term of court. It was so ordered, and that ended the matter.

BIG DISTILLERY CLOSED.

The Government Will Fight an Injunction Is used by Judge Jackson.

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 5.—Acting under instructions from the secretary of the treasury, Internal Revenue Collector A. B. White has closed the big Hannis distillery pending the decision of Judge Jackson of the United States court on a motion to perpetuate the injunction enjoining the collector from assigning to duty at the distillery any officers other than those employed there. The usual changes in assignments were made by the commissioner of internal revenue on Oct. 1.

Democrats who were supplanted by others who were assigned, but who were not dismissed from the service, applied for the injunction, which was granted. As the injunction prohibited anyone from assuming the duties, and as on Oct. 2 the storekeeper and the gauger were suspended from office by the secretary of the treasury for insubordination, there is no gauger or storekeeper in charge of the distillery. The distillery, which has several million dollars worth of whisky in bond, cannot be supplied under the injunction with the officers to withdraw goods and had to be ordered closed down until the case is finally decided in the courts. The government will resist the injunction.

PREACHER HAS GUN HANDY.

Claims Labor Leaders Interfered With His Housebuilding and Assaulted Him.

St. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—Rev. R. J. Kellogg, pastor of a little Congregational church in Denver side, not far from East St. Louis on the Illinois side of the river, is building a parsonage under the protection of a double barreled shotgun.

The congregation was too poor to build him a house, so he said he would build it himself with what help he could get from the congregation and others. A. C. Palmer, an officer of the carpenters' union, demanded that union men be employed.

"I have no objection to employing union men," said Rev. Kellogg, "but I will not discharge my neighbors to make places for others."

While at work alone on the parsonage Mr. Kellogg has been assaulted by a gang of seven men, who compelled him to discontinue work for the time being. He secured a shotgun and hereafter he will take it to the building and keep it handy for use should another attack be made on him.

A Number of Buildings Wiped Out at Georgetown.

GEORGETOWN, Oct. 5.—Fire here destroyed the following buildings:

G. Markley's hardware store; the public school building. Most of these establishments were in the Duffy block. The total loss is probably $50,000. Insurance other than that mentioned is not known. It started in Flinn's carriage factory.

LUETGERT MAY TESTIFY.

Some Probability of His Going on the Stand Today.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—An unexpected turn of affairs has occurred in the Luetgert trial. The defense suddenly dropped its line of expert testimony and put on witnesses to impeach the evidence of witnesses for the state. It was apparent that ex-Judge Vincent chief counsel for the defense, had at last tired of the expert evidence. The testimony of each succeeding witness was practically a repetition.

Luetgert may go on the stand today.

CHAPTER IV.

SUSPICIOUS CIRCUMSTANCES.

Lieutenant Blunt's position on this bright July morning was most embarrassing. Personally he had known the pet trumpeter of B troop less than a year, for, as was said in the previous chapter, in point of actual experience on the frontier the boy was the superior of the young West Pointer, who had joined only the preceding autumn.

Finding young Fred so great a favorite among the officers and men, Mr. Blunt was quite ready to accept the general verdict, although his first impression of the youngster was that he was a trifle spoiled. On the other hand, no other man in the troop had so favorably impressed the new officer as the "left principal guide," Sergeant Dawson, whose dashing horsemanship, fine figure and carriage and sharp, soldierly ways had attracted his attention at the first outset.

Then Dawson's manner to him was so scrupulously deferential and soldierly on all occasions—sometimes the old war worn sergeants would be a trifle supercilious with green subalterns—that Blunt's moderate amount of vanity was touched. He was always glad when his turn came round as officer of the guard to find Sergeant Dawson on the detail, and he recalled, when he came to think over the events of his first half year with the regiment that very summer, that it was when on guard he began to imagine Fred Waller was "somewhat spoiled."

Twice the boy "marched on" as orderly trumpeter when he and Dawson were on the guard detail for the day, and both times the sergeant had found fault with the musician and had most respectfully and diplomatically, but in that semiconfidential manner which shrewd old soldiers so well know how to assume to very young subalterns, given Mr. Blunt to understand that the boy "needed looking after."

Months later, when Blunt and Rayburn were discussing the probabilities of promotion, when the sergeant major of the regiment took his discharge and there was lively competition among the soldiers for this the finest noncommissioned post in the regiment, Blunt warmly advocated Dawson's claim. "He is the patiest sergeant in the whole command," he said, "and the smartest one I know."

"Oh, yes," answered Rayburn with a certain superiority of manner and a quiet sarcasm that provoked the junior officer, "there's no question about Dawson's smartness. One after another every 'plebe' in the regiment starts in with the same enthusiasm about Dawson. I had it myself about eight years ago. But the trouble with him is he isn't a stayer. He can't stand prosperity."

But Blunt preferred to hold to his own views and his faith in the second sergeant of the troop. And so it happened that on this eventful morning he sent Sergeant Graham at once to investigate as to the amounts stolen during the night and directed that Sergeant Dawson, who was in command of the herd and picket guard, should come to him immediately.

The sun was just rising above the low, treeless ridges on the horizon as the lieutenant stood erect and looked about him. Close at hand the Niobrara—"The Running Water"—was brawling over its stony shallows, and the smoke of tiny cook fires was floating upward into the keen, crisp morning air. Northward the slopes were bare and treeless, too, but closely carpeted with the dense growth of buffalo grass. Only a few yards out from the bivouac, hopped and side lined, the troop horses were cropping the still juicy herbage, and three or four soldiers, carbines in hand and garbed in their light blue overcoats, were posted well out beyond the herd on every side, watching the valley far and near for any signs of Indian coming. Below the bivouac and farther from the Laramie road was an old log hut, once used as a ranch and "bar" for thirsty souls traversing the well worn way to the reservation, but the tide of travel had first shifted to the Sidney route and then been stemmed entirely, so far as the line to or near the agencies was concerned, and the proprietor had taken himself and his fiery poison to better paying fields.

Far away to the southwest the blue cone of Laramie peak stood boldly against the sky. Nearer at hand, though a day's ride away, old Rawhide Butte rose sturdily from the midst of surrounding prairie slopes. Up stream, among some sparse cottonwood, a bit of ruddy color among the branches caught the lieutenant's quick eye. Some Indian brave, wrapped in his blanket, had been laid to rest there out of reach of the snarling coyotes, one of whom could be dimly discerned slinking away under the bank, just out of easy rifle range.

Off to the south lay the same bold, barren, desolate looking expanse of rolling prairie. Blunt could not suppress a shudder as he thought of the terrible risk the boy had run in his mad break for the settlements beyond the Platte. Of course he could go nowhere else

North, east and west, all was Indian land, and no lone white man could live there. Of course he was making for the cattle ranges and settlements in Nebraska. Such, at least, was the lieutenant's theory. He had spent only one year on the frontier, but had been there long enough to know that among the cowboys, ranchmen and especially among the riffraff ever hanging about the small towns and settlements a deserter from the army was apt to be welcomed and protected if he had money, arms or a good horse. Once plundered of all he possessed, the luckless fellow might then be turned over to the nearest post and the authorized reward of $30 claimed for his apprehension, but if well armed and sober the deserter had little trouble in making his way through the toughest mining camps and settlements.

CHAPTER V.

TRAILING THE TRAITOR.

Fred Waller knew all the valley of the North Platte as well as he did the trails around Sanders and Red Buttes, and if he could succeed in eluding the Indian war parties he would have no difficulty in fording the river, or swimming if necessary, and, with the start he must have had, his light weight and powerful horse, it would be next to impossible to catch him, even if they could follow his trail. Besides were they not ordered to remain at Niobrara until Charlton's return?

The more Mr. Blunt thought of the matter the more worried and perplexed he became. Anywhere else he might have sent a sergeant with a couple of men in pursuit, but here it would be exposing them to almost certain death. It was some minutes before Sergeant Dawson came in answer to the summons. Blunt could see the troopers gathered about the first sergeant, excitedly discussing the affair and bemoaning their individual losses. Graham was noting the amounts on a slip of paper, and his fine face was pale with distress. "Is that all now, men?" he asked as he completed the list. Then he sharply turned away and once more approached his young commander.

"Lieutenant," he said, halting and raising his hand in salute, "it isn't quite so bad as I feared, but bad enough. Sergeant Farron, Corporal Watts and I are the principal losers, besides Sergeant Dawson. Three of the men who went into the agency on pass just after we were paid had left most of their money with me, and that is gone. I had it with my own in the flat wallet I always carried in the inside pocket of my hunting shirt. You can see, sir, how it was done." And the sergeant displayed a long, clean cut through the Indian tanned buckskin. "It took a sharp knife and a light hand to do that, for I'm not a heavy sleeper. Farron, Watts and I were sleeping side by side just over there on the bank, and they heard nothing all the night. But will the lieutenant look at this handkerchief, sir? Is it chloroformed? I feel dull and heavy, as though I had been drugged. He couldn't have got it from me any other way."

Blunt took the bandanna and sniffed. It cautiously and then turned it over and curiously inspected it. There was certainly an odor of chloroform about it—a strong odor.

"Whose is this?" he asked. "I do not remember seeing any of the men wearing one like this."

"None of them owns it, sir. I've asked the whole party but Sergeant Dawson and the men on guard. They have these cheap red things for sale at the store there at the Red Cloud Agency, but none of the troop have I ever seen wearing them. They are too small for neck handkerchiefs. Dawson is out yet, trying to locate the trail. I've sent Robbins for him." And the sergeant looked anxiously away southward, searching the prairie with a world of pain and trouble in his eyes.

"What could possibly have induced the boy to turn scoundrel all at once?" asked the lieutenant. "It will break his old father's heart."

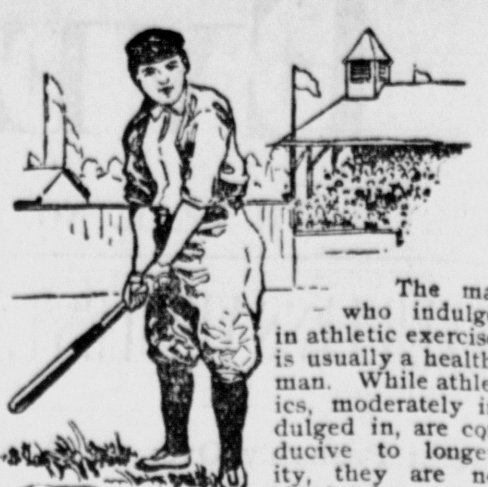

"I can't account for it, sir. He has been as honest and square as a boy could be ever since his enlistment, but the men tell me that he has been spending a good deal of time over in the post whenever we camped there, and I am afraid, from what Donovan says, that he has been gambling with the young fellows at the band quarters. There's a hard lot in there, I'm told, and the old hands encourage the boys to get all they can out of strangers, and then they turn to and fleece the boys. It is about $400 he has taken. A man knows that will last but a little while on the frontier, but to a boy it seems a big pile."

Then, rapidly approaching, the bounding hoofs of a troop horse were heard. Blunt eagerly turned and saw Sergeant Dawson galloping toward them down the north bank. Reining in so suddenly as almost to throw his panting bay upon his haunches, he vaulted lightly to the ground and stood before the lieutenant, his face beaded with sweat and his eyes glaring.

"Which way has he gone? Could you tell?"

"Yes, sir. I trailed him out across the prairie yonder for 300 yards or so. Then he took the Laramie road, and there the hoof tracks are all confused, but I knew he would never keep that line very long, and I'm almost certain I found the place where he turned off, a mile beyond the ford and well over the bluffs."

The man who indulges in athletic exercises is usually a healthy man. While athletics, moderately indulged in, are conducive to longevity, they are not absolutely necessary. If, when a man feels out of sorts and nervous, and realizes that he is suffering from biliousness or indigestion, he will take the right remedy, he can always keep himself in good health.

Many serious illnesses have their inception in indigestion or in an inactive liver. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a sure, safe, speedy and permanent cure for all disorders of the digestion. It also cures all of the maladies that have their inception in these disorders. It is a prompt cure for giddiness, sick headache, pain in the stomach, fullness and swelling after meals, dizziness and drowsiness, cold chills, flushings of heat, loss of appetite, shortness of breath, blotches on the skin, disturbed sleep, frightful dreams and nervous and trembling sensations. It makes the appetite keen and hearty, the digestion perfect, the liver active and fills the blood with life-giving elements that build healthy tissue. It is a cure for nervous exhaustion and prostration and it cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption, bronchial, throat and kindred affections. An honest dealer will not try to induce customers to take some worthless substitute for the sake of a few pennies added profit.

WELLSVILLE.

NO SWEEPER THIS TIME

Council Sat on the Board of Health.

BOARD OF TRADE NOT THERE

The Members Could Not Arrange Matters For the Joint Session, and It Will Be Held Next Thursday Evening—What Was Done—All the News.

Council held a session last night, but it was not with the board of trade. The board had not arranged its affairs so that a joint session would be beneficial, and it was delayed until Thursday evening, when a rousing time is expected.

As the meeting advanced it was shown that $3,050 had been paid out last month, and the mayor reported a balance of $66.35.

The report of the water works trustees showed that $321.96 had been collected, and there was now a balance of $3,100.17.

Someone asked what had become of the bridge fund, and Clerk Davidson said he had seen nothing of it. Council ordered that he look it up, and apply for Wellsville's share as it was needed in repairing the creek bridge.

Council sat down upon the request of the board of health for a new sweeper, Mr. Bowers saying it was the duty of the board to have the citizens clean the streets, but it was the first time he ever knew of a board designating the means to be employed. Mr. Rand moved the resolution be filed, and council said no to the board's request.

C. V. Shoub was given the contract for painting the creek bridge for $38.

Mr. Armstrong said that all but three property owners of Wood street had agreed to pave the sidewalks if council gave them a gutter, and the matter went to the improvement committee.

Mr. Armstrong said some people would cut down the electric light poles if they were not moved from in front of their residences, but Mr. Bowers stated the matter had been settled, while Mr. Rand wanted to know who had control of the street commissioner. Mr. Lones said he was in the hands of the street committee.

Building committee wanted to rent some rooms in city hall, but the matter was not settled, and Mr. Bowers complained of the manner in which the commissioner did his work. He said he had ordered a sewer opened on Third street three months ago, and it was done last week. He wondered why the commissioner was allowed to use $150 to $200 a month and not send in an itemized bill.

Council ordered sidewalks for Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, and the committees of improvements for Front street and Mulberry alley reported progress. The matter of renting city hall to the ball club for a dance was handed over to the mayor, and bills amounting to $1,142.98 were ordered paid. It will not be necessary to borrow.

The resolution to buy a sweeper came up, and was defeated 5 to 4, the agent solemnly taking up his grip and moving out.

Solicitor Lones said the city had been sued by Harry Ollman for $10,000, and he was instructed to fight the case.

It was a peaceful session, something not always found when Wellsville's statesmen meet.

The Reason.

The plans of the board of trade were not complete enough to allow it to meet with council. The members want all business ready so council will have nothing to do but open the street. The moment the right of way is granted a number of projects will be placed on foot. Upon council virtually depends the future growth of the city, and it is believed every member will realize his responsibility.

The News of Wellsville.

The Pioneer has been shut down because the company cannot buy spar. The demand for that useful article is great. The plant will likely resume tomorrow for a steady run.

Work was commenced at Lythe's yesterday. It will be in full operation in a few days.

MONETT TALKS.

He Says He Is Enforcing Ohio's Laws and Is Being Opposed.

Columbus, O., Oct. 5.

For nearly a year past Attorney General Monnett, who is a candidate on the Republican ticket for re-election, has been prosecuting alleged violators of the insurance laws of the state, which laws prohibit the arbitrary fixing of insurance rates in the state of Ohio by trusts and combinations. Of course, the accused companies and corporations will have their day in court, but in the meantime it is alleged that insurance agents are working secretly against Mr. Monnett for doing what the statutes provide, though perhaps Mr. Monnett's opponent on the Democratic ticket would not care at this time to say that he himself, if elected, would not enforce the laws of Ohio in the attorney general's department. That he has agreed with the insurance agents to "let up" on prosecutions if elected does not appear, and yet the insurance corporations doing business in Ohio in an illegal manner are working for him and against Mr. Monnett.

Mr. Monnett talked as follows to your correspondent upon this very important question:

"When I began the eleven cases in the supreme court of the state of Ohio against the leading English, Canadian, Scottish and American companies that were doing business in the state of Ohio it was early in the year, when no campaign was on, and I did not expect it to be a political question.

"My defense is, if it needs and defense, that I have a sworn duty to perform to enforce the laws and constitution of the state of Ohio. Reputable firms doing a large manufacturing business in the state of Ohio, first from Dayton, afterward from Akron and Sandusky and other points, filed written complaints with me that there was a combine of insurance companies to maintain an illegal rate of insurance in the state of Ohio; that during the panic of 1895-6 many struggling industries in the state of Ohio were trying to curtail expenses in order to save themselves from bankruptcy, and to continue running and keep their labor force employed. Among other reductions they tried to get a reduction in insurance, and upon the sworn testimony already taken in six of the larger cities of the state a most remarkable state of affairs exists in the state of Ohio at the present time.

"For it is evident that a large number, upwards of 60 insurance companies, are violating the expressed statutes of the state, which provides that no insurance company shall enter into any compact or combination with other insurance companies, or shall require their agents to enter into any compact or combination with other insurance companies, for the purpose of governing or controlling the rates charged for fire insurance on any property within this state.

"The chapter defining the duties of the attorney general makes it his duty, when upon complaint or otherwise, he has good reason to believe that a corporation doing business in the state of Ohio has misused its franchise, privilege or right conferred upon it by law, or when it claims or holds by contract or otherwise, or has exercised a franchise, privilege or right in contravention of law, such offending corporation shall be brought before the supreme court of the state to answer to such charges.

"When the above mentioned complaints were duly filed I would have been recreant to my trust as such an official, had I done otherwise than take prompt action. I told the companies and their attorneys who called upon me that if they were in the right, and not violating the trust law, the six judges of the supreme court would do them no harm. If they were not right, they should be brought to swift judgment and speedy punishment. They will have their day in court as would any other accused, and as well might they attempt to prosecute any court or other officer for doing what is plainly his duty. And the matter has not a place for a moment as a political question, and surely reflects upon my opponent to believe that they have hope of relief through electing him, for he could not do otherwise if he fills my place."

"Mr. Monnett, do you object to state what, if any, discoveries you have made with reference to the combination or insurance companies in the state of Ohio?"

"Inasmuch as I have been attacked by the insurance press and by the secret combination you refer to, I might give you some of the discoveries we have made in the testimony that is now of public record. I could not give you but a few, as the testimony would make a volume of five or six hundred pages. Last year there was collected by the insurance companies in the state of Ohio $7,335,099.59. There was paid out for fire losses $3,261,000, or a gross profit over and above losses of $4,128,000,000. The joint stock companies of other states doing business in Ohio collected last year $4,210,000, and paid out $1,802,640 in losses. The foreign insurance companies collected $1,630,400 and paid out for losses $704,566. If this amount of business was done by fair competition, no one could be heard to complain. But in view of the testimony I doubt if any fair minded men can for a moment doubt, for the agents themselves swear to these facts."

Capacity of Ocean Steamships.

Few persons looking at an ordinary ocean steamship, loaded or unloaded, as it lies in a dock, have any conception of its enormous carrying capacity. The boat looks big, of course, but gives no idea of the tremendous amount of freight that can be stowed away in its capacious hold without overloading it. The Baltimore and Ohio railroad loaded a steamship the other day, and this is what it took to fill her: Sixty-six cars of lumber, 4 of starch, 19 of oilcake, 6 of provisions, 1 of grain, 1 of flour, 22 of tobacco, 2 of wire, 3 of sugar, 13 of fresh meat, 20 of sheep, or 1,699 head; 45 of cattle, or 888 head; 3 of lard; 1 of copper, 4 of merchandise and 161 of grain, making a total of 371 carloads. This is equal to ten long freight trains, which, if placed in a row, would cover a distance of about two miles. And all their freight went into one tramp steamship. —Philadelphia Record.

Sequel to Love Letters in Cipher.

George R. Nash, editor of the Westport (N. Y.) Sentinel, has begun proceedings for a divorce against his wife, Ida L. Nash. He has suspected for a long time, but never secured any legal evidence until recently, when a pile of love letters, alleged to be written by her to the person named as correspondent, a well known railroad man, were found in a crevice in the railroad station while some repairs were in progress.

The alleged unfaithful wife and her admirer carried on their correspondence in an extremely ingenious cipher, the key to which was discovered by chance by the writer's frequent use of the name of a certain hotel. The letters are not only those of expert cryptographers, but contain the warmest protestations of profound affection. —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

KLONDYKE GOLD.

There is no mistake about the presence of a large amount of gold in the Klondike region.

That which is in dispute is whether there is an advantage in miners setting out for the place before winter sets in.

The gold is a certainty, and the discoveries on the tributaries of the Yukon will cause the developments of gold mines in all parts of the world.

Determined Harker Shall Not Serve.

STEVENSVILLE, O., Oct. 5.—Word comes from Dillonville, where the miners are on a strike, in which the Long Run miners joined, because the company refuses to allow John Harker to act as checkweighman, that Receiver Blickensderfer announces that the company will close the mines down sooner than allow Harker to act. District mine officials will try to effect a settlement.

Murdered His Brother.

GREENFIELD, Ind., Oct. 5.—Albert Scott, a boy of 14, has murdered his brother, Benton Scott, in a quarrel.

Big Hotel Burned.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 5.—The Hotel Lafayette, Minnetonka's most famous hostelry, has been destroyed by fire.

The Weather.

Fair, followed by threatening near the lakes; warmer; fresh southerly winds.

PITH OF THE NEWS.

The prospect is that food in the Klondike this will be very scarce. The river is now so low that laden boats cannot ascend.

Bishop Gaines of the colored church has a theory that his race is gradually being absorbed by the whites and has published his idea on the subject.

Editor Brown of the Waco (Tex.) Iconoclast was mobbed by a crowd of students of Taylor university, forced to sign a retraction of an article and then leave town.

Explorer Peary talked of his meteorite and gave his reasons for believing it to be a celestial body. Some doubts as to the authenticity of the meteorite had been expressed and Lieutenant Peary explained them away.

The attendance figures at the Nashville fair are very encouraging. Rhode Island, German-American and Chicago days are the features of this week.

WELLSVILLE.

NO SWEEPER THIS TIME

Council Sat on the Board of Health.

BOARD OF TRADE NOT THERE

The Members Could Not Arrange Matters For the Joint Session, and It Will Be Held Next Thursday Evening—What Was Done—All the News.

Council held a session last night, but it was not with the board of trade. The board had not arranged its affairs so that a joint session would be beneficial, and it was delayed until Thursday evening, when a rousing time is expected.

As the meeting advanced it was shown that $3,050 had been paid out last month, and the mayor reported a balance of $66.35.

The report of the water works trustees showed that $321.96 had been collected, and there was now a balance of $3,100.17.

Someone asked what had become of the bridge fund, and Clerk Davidson said he had seen nothing of it. Council ordered that he look it up, and apply for Wellsville's share as it was needed in repairing the creek bridge.

Council sat down upon the request of the board of health for a new sweeper, Mr. Bowers saying it was the duty of the board to have the citizens clean the streets, but it was the first time he ever knew of a board designating the means to be employed. Mr. Rand moved the resolution be filed, and council said no to the board's request.

C. V. Shoub was given the contract for painting the creek bridge for $38.

Mr. Armstrong said that all but three property owners of Wood street had agreed to pave the sidewalks if council gave them a gutter, and the matter went to the improvement committee.

Mr. Armstrong said some people would cut down the electric light poles if they were not moved from in front of their residences, but Mr. Bowers stated the matter had been settled, while Mr. Rand wanted to know who had control of the street commissioner. Mr. Lones said he was in the hands of the street committee.

Building committee wanted to rent some rooms in city hall, but the matter was not settled, and Mr. Bowers complained of the manner in which the commissioner did his work. He said he had ordered a sewer opened on Third street three months ago, and it was done last week. He wondered why the commissioner was allowed to use $150 to $200 a month and not send in an itemized bill.

Council ordered sidewalks for Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, and the committees of improvements for Front street and Mulberry alley reported progress. The matter of renting city hall to the ball club for a dance was handed over to the mayor, and bills amounting to $1,142.98 were ordered paid. It will not be necessary to borrow.

The resolution to buy a sweeper came up, and was defeated 5 to 4, the agent solemnly taking up his grip and moving on.

Solicitor Lones said the city had been sued by Harry Ollman for $10,000, and he was instructed to fight the case.

It was a peaceful session, something not always found when Wellsville's statesmen meet.

The Reason.

The plans of the board of trade were not complete enough to allow it to meet with council. The members want all business ready so council will have nothing to do but open the street. The moment the right of way is granted a number of projects will be placed on foot. Upon council virtually depends the future growth of the city, and it is believed every member will realize his responsibility.

The News of Wellsville.

The Pioneer has been shut down because the company cannot buy spar. The demand for that useful article is great. The plant will likely resume tomorrow for a steady run.

Work was commenced at Lythe's yesterday. It will be in full operation in a few days.

J. R. Morrison, of Lisbon, was here yesterday.

William Ferris, of Pittsburg, is in town.

Health Officer Warren has been notifying citizens that they must clean up, and the appearance of upper Main street shows that his words have been heeded. The board of health are making a record, and the only complaint is that they are not sufficiently severe.

THE treasury statement for September should make interesting reading for the gentleman who makes the political policy for the Salem Herald.

THE endeavor to array the colored people of Ohio against Governor Bushnell is another of Democracy's tricks which will be barren of results.

AND now they say that General Warner, who would like to be the free silver senator from Ohio, owns an interest in a Georgia gold mine. Consistency, etc., etc.

IF it be true that England sympathizes with Spain, we can fear nothing from the kaiser. He may like Spain, but he is not at all partial to his relatives across the channel.

SILVER has resumed its downward tendency, and the McLean leaders see their fancied vote of next November sinking with it. Ohio has no use for a cause with so little stability.

THE man who sympathizes with the Kansas farmer wastes brain energy which might be devoted to a cause more worthy. The Kansas farmer is in these days far from being an object of pity.

TO the people who remember, the facts, the statement of the Steubenville Gazette that the reduction in the wages of operative potters came while the McKinley law was in force, is nothing short of ridiculous.

IF Senator Foraker speaks here for the Republican ticket, and Eugene Debs talks in behalf of Democracy, it will not require extraordinary powers of observation to show the unbiased man who will secure the greatest number of votes next election day.

"HER addition to our confederacy is exactly what is wanted to round our power as a nation to the point of its utmost interest," wrote Thomas Jefferson, of Cuba, and what was true in that day is true today. This is not jingoism, it is fact.

THE municipal convention at Columbus of all its work did nothing better than to recommend the publication of every city's official business in newspapers which employ union men. If the politicians who voted for that measure will labor for its enforcement they will do right with the biggest cap R in every composing room in the land.

PROFITLESS CAMPAIGNING.

The Democratic leaders have wasted much time and not a little money in endeavoring to convince the state that the Republican party is rent and torn asunder, and President McKinley is using his influence to defeat Governor Bushnell, while Senator Foraker is swinging his axe with telling effect among the friends of Senator Hanna. That the efforts on this line have been useless is shown by Mr. Foraker who emphatically denies that he is out of the campaign, while his speeches show that he is first, last and between times a Republican. But then it's only another of Friend O'Myers' errors.

Zach Robison Will Be Given Another Chance.

CHUCK STEWART SETTLED IT

When He Signed That Affidavit Which Said He Had Not Been Telling the Whole Truth—Judge Burrows Gave a Lengthy Opinion in Handing Down the Ruling of the Circuit Court—Prosecutor Speaker Is Ready, and the Defense Will Not Urge Delay.

LISBON, Oct. 5.—[Special]—The circuit judges continued their work late yesterday afternoon, and at noon handed down their final decision. The plea of Zach Robison for a new trial was granted. Robison's conviction for the murder of his wife in East Liverpool last spring will be remembered, as will the fact that Judge Smith sentenced him to death on Nov. 26.

The court found error on the part of Judge Smith in refusing Robison a new trial when his conviction was accomplished in part on the evidence of Chuck Stewart, whose perjury on the witness stand was so apparent. Stewart, as Mrs. Robison's paramour, to whom the letter, supposed to have caused her death at the hands of her husband, was written, was among the State's most important witnesses.

Error was also found in Judge Smith's ruling in rejecting from the evidence the written statements offered by the defense, which tended to show that Mrs. Weigand, an important witness, contradicted herself in the testimony given by her at the preliminary hearing and before common pleas court.

"It is contended," said Judge Burrows, "that the lower court erred in admitting evidence tending to show that Robison, six or eight years prior to the homicide, made threats against his wife, threatening to kill her if she would not furnish him with whisky. The court did not err in this, as any evidence tending to prove any motive however remote for the crime committed would be admissible in a case of this character, and the remoteness only goes to the weight of the evidence."

The admission by the court to evidence of the letter written by Mrs. Robison to Stewart was held to be of insufficient weight or prejudice to the accused on which to grant a new trial.

"Instead of being prejudicial," said the judge, "this letter was certainly in his favor. It does not in any degree tend to prove what the state intended. The only thing in the letter to intimate friendliness toward Robison is that it was signed 'your true wife.' In view of this fact and the fact that he had just witnessed the proof of her infidelity in the letter written to Stewart, it seems to me that it would but add fuel to the flame."

"The conflicting statements and contradictions made by Mrs. Weigand are not of sufficient importance to reflect on their credibility. We think the court erred in rejecting the written statements offered by the defense; but as proper impeaching evidence was not produced, we will be compelled to find that no error was committed. The rule is well settled that a new trial should not be granted in this case upon the claim of newly discovered evidence, as set out in the affidavit of Charles Stewart. The trial court exercised sound discretion in this matter, as this would not be of sufficient consequence to make a change, not only in the verdict, but in the minds of the jurors."

"We do not find errors on the part of the court from the fact that the putty knife and revolver found their way to the jury room without having been offered in evidence. The jury was familiar with the appearance of both. If the prosecuting attorney had taken unfair advantage behind the back of defendant's council and had given these to the bailiff, that would raise another question; but this is not charged."

"It is seriously contended here that the prosecuting attorney erred in talking of matters outside of the case. We cannot lay down any fixed rule limiting the right of argument. If Prosecutor Speaker's testimony contains the right version of this, he is guilty of no misconduct, while if the affidavits of defense counsel be true, he is guilty of gross misconduct. The ruling of the court below must settle this."

"As to the misconduct of Witness Charles Stewart, it may be said that the jury ought not to have believed this man. His testimony on the stand left no doubt in the minds of the jurors that the letter, claimed to have been copied by Robison from one received by Stewart from Mrs. Robison, was a forged and fictitious letter. He swears the letter received by him contained nothing improper; that it was a friendly letter. His testimony since the trial is directly contradictory to this, and this is the highest grade of misconduct. Here is a man convicted of the highest crime known under our laws, one for which he must give up his life. Now can it be that he should do this if the evidence convicting him, in part even, is perjured evidence? We think the court erred in refusing a new trial on this charge, and thus we reverse the finding, and remand the case to common pleas for further hearing."

SOME NEW EVIDENCE

Will Be Introduced by Prosecutor Speaker.

LISBON, Oct. 5.—[Special]—Your correspondent talked with Prosecutor Speaker to-day concerning the action of circuit court in granting Zach Robison a new trial.

Mr. Speaker said that the State was ready to go to trial, and will have an abundance of new testimony for the consideration of the jury. He has not lost sight of the case since the trial, and is at present better prepared than ever. He has kept track of Weigand and his wife and other important witnesses, and can bring them here whenever they are needed. It has been rumored here that Mr. Speaker would allow Robison to plead guilty to murder in the second degree, but the prosecutor said positively that he would not consent to any such course. Mr. Speaker's friends here are delighted to know that circuit court cleared him of any suspicion of misconduct.

It was stated to-day that the case would in all probability be heard during this term.

H. E. Grosshans and W. S. Potts, the attorneys for the defense, are elated over their victory, and it is said will not move for delay in the trial.

CHUCK STEWART SETTLED IT

When He Signed That Affidavit Which Said He Had Not Been Telling the Whole Truth—Judge Burrows Gave a Lengthy Opinion in Handing Down the Ruling of the Circuit Court—Prosecutor Speaker Is Ready, and the Defense Will Not Urge Delay.

LISBON, Oct. 5.—[Special]—The circuit judges continued their work late yesterday afternoon, and at noon handed down their final decision. The plea of Zach Robison for a new trial was granted. Robison's conviction for the murder of his wife in East Liverpool last spring will be remembered, as will the fact that Judge Smith sentenced him to death on Nov. 26.

The court found error on the part of Judge Smith in refusing Robison a new trial when his conviction was accomplished in part on the evidence of Chuck Stewart, whose perjury on the witness stand was so apparent. Stewart, as Mrs. Robison's paramour, to whom the letter, supposed to have caused her death at the hands of her husband, was written, was among the State's most important witnesses.

Error was also found in Judge Smith's ruling in rejecting from the evidence the written statements offered by the defense, which tended to show that Mrs. Weigand, an important witness, contradicted herself in the testimony given by her at the preliminary hearing and before common pleas court.

"It is contended," said Judge Burrows, "that the lower court erred in admitting evidence tending to show that Robison, six or eight years prior to the homicide, made threats against his wife, threatening to kill her if she would not furnish him with whisky. The court did not err in this, as any evidence tending to prove any motive however remote for the crime committed would be admissible in a case of this character, and the remoteness only goes to the weight of the evidence."

The admission by the court to evidence of the letter written by Mrs. Robison to Stewart was held to be of insufficient weight or prejudice to the accused on which to grant a new trial.

"Instead of being prejudicial," said the judge, "this letter was certainly in his favor. It does not in any degree tend to prove what the state intended. The only thing in the letter to intimate friendliness toward Robison is that it was signed 'your true wife.' In view of this fact and the fact that he had just witnessed the proof of her infidelity in the letter written to Stewart, it seems to me that it would but add fuel to the flame."

"The conflicting statements and contradictions made by Mrs. Weigand are not of sufficient importance to reflect on their credibility. We think the court erred in rejecting the written statements offered by the defense; but as proper impeaching evidence was not produced, we will be compelled to find that no error was committed. The rule is well settled that a new trial should not be granted in this case upon the claim of newly discovered evidence, as set out in the affidavit of Charles Stewart. The trial court exercised sound discretion in this matter, as this would not be of sufficient consequence to make a change, not only in the verdict, but in the minds of the jurors."

SORE MOUTH.

"We do not find errors on the part of the court from the fact that the putty knife and revolver found their way to the jury room without having been offered in evidence. The jury was familiar with the appearance of both. If the prosecuting attorney had taken unfair advantage behind the back of defendant's council and had given these to the bailiff, that would raise another question; but this is not charged."

"It is seriously contended here that the prosecuting attorney erred in talking of matters outside of the case. We cannot lay down any fixed rule limiting the right of argument. If Prosecutor Speaker's testimony contains the right version of this, he is guilty of no misconduct, while if the affidavits of defense counsel be true, he is guilty of gross misconduct. The ruling of the court below must settle this."

"As to the misconduct of Witness Charles Stewart, it may be said that the jury ought not to have believed this man. His testimony on the stand left no doubt in the minds of the jurors that the letter, claimed to have been copied by Robison from one received by Stewart from Mrs. Robison, was a forged and fictitious letter. ## F. W. FOWLER TO LEAVE

He Becomes President of the Toronto Pottery.

MR. WARNER GOES TO THE UNION

Changes in Local Business Concerns Because the Plant Down the River Has Been Purchased by a New Company and Will Soon Be Ready For Operation.

The details of the much talked of Toronto pottery deal became known today, and will serve to surprise any number of people who have been wondering who made up the company that has been so anxious to buy the plant.

The officers of the company are F. W. Fowler and Harry R. Wyllie, of the Union pottery, who will respectively occupy the positions of president and secretary-treasurer. The directors are E. J. McIlvain, Pittsburg; S. B. Goucher, Toronto; Albert Ellis, San Francisco; H. L. Wyllie and F. W. Fowler, East Liverpool.

The company have been after the plant for some time, but the courts complicated matters so that it was impossible to obtain possession of the property. It is believed possession will be given this week, and work will be started at once. It is not intended to put goods on the market this year, but the plant will be placed in the best of condition, and the warehouses filled in order that salesmen may begin the season for trade January 1.

The new order of affairs necessitates a change at the Union. Mr. Fowler resigned his position as manager at the meeting of stockholders last night, and J. R. Warner, the well known shoe merchant, was elected to fill the vacancy. Mr. Warner will not take up the duties of the position until Mr. Fowler leaves, which will not be for several weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Fowler will reside in Toronto, much to the regret of their many friends in this city.

The purchase will place in operation another good pottery, and will give employment to a large number of men.

Mrs. J. C. Campbell Had a Very Hard Fall.

Mrs. J. A. Campbell, of 251 College street, while ascending the steps in the house of her son, W. H. Campbell, in Helanna Sunday evening, tripped and fell down the entire length. When she fell she was but one step from the top. A hasty examination prove no bones to be broken, but her back was badly sprained. She was brought to her home yesterday afternoon, and today is somewhat improved.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—The suit of Miss Elizabeth Deveny, of Marion, O., against Dr. O. D. Shay, of East Liverpool, in which she asked $10,000 for breach of promise, came to a sudden, but not altogether unexpected, end in the United States court here today.

The principals and their attorneys were present, and arrangements were soon made for a settlement. It provided that Doctor Shay is to pay Miss Deveny $2,500, and the costs in the case. No estimate of the costs is given out, but it will amount to a comfortable sum.

The Liverpool witnesses will return home this evening.

JESS KEPNER MUST PAY

John R. Martin Won That Old Suit Again.

THE VEHICLE ORDINANCE KILLED

Once More It Was Declared Unconstitutional—Other Cases Passed Upon by Circuit Court Yesterday Afternoon and Today.

LISBON, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—The verdict in the Martin-Kepner case, which gave to Ex-treasurer John R. Martin judgment against Ex-treasurer Jesse Kepner for $10,974, was affirmed by circuit court with costs.

The case was reviewed in full by Judge Frazier, dating back to the time when Martin qualified as treasurer.

"The pleadings taken as a whole," he said, "authorized the jury to find for Martin. If Martin's testimony was believed as to his count of the funds on the day after he qualified, then the jury was justified in finding for him. The case has two sides, and if we were called upon as triers we might have found a different verdict."

The vehicle tax ordinance passed by East Liverpool was for the second time declared unconstitutional. The case was that of George Miller, an expressman. He was compelled to pay $9.75 under the ordinance. In the lower court judgment was entered by agreement of all parties and the case taken up on error as a test case.

"In attempting to exact the payment of a license fee," said Judge Laubie, "from any one and every one who owned a horse in the city the city transcended its authority. The ordinance is invalid, and they consequently stand without authority to enforce it."

The motion to dismiss the case of Ohio against William McLaughlin, of Columbus, was sustained on the grounds that no jurisdiction was set up on error, and because there was no final judgment in the court below. The indictment charged McLaughlin with having fraudulently obtained signatures to notes on the value of a horse.

The case of B. S. Ambler against J. T. Brooks, of Salem, was dismissed, with the plaintiff to pay the costs.

Biggest Fountain In the World.

The greatest fountain in the world was turned on recently at Indianapolis and permitted to flow for an hour. It is one of the cascades now in the course of construction at the base of the soldiers' monument. The flow of water measures fully up to the contract, which calls for 7,000 gallons a minute at each of the two cascades as a regular thing, with a capacity under high pressure, however, that is much greater. The combined capacity of the world famous fountains at Versailles, hitherto the largest in the world, is 80,000 gallons an hour. They would make but feeble streams in comparison with the monument cascades, and yet the cost of running the French fountains is so great that the water is only turned on on gala days.

A Racy Hearing.

The case of Conner & Miller against Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McLaughlin for money alleged to be due on a contract attracted a crowd to Squire Hill's court this afternoon. J. H. Brookes and W. B. ### HIT HIM HARD.

This Business Man "Killed" a Saloon Keeper.

Yes, "killed" him, figuratively speaking, and right here in East Liverpool. How? Let me tell you.

The two men were talking about unionism and early closing, and the saloonkeeper warmly argued that it was the very right thing for the merchants and business men of East Liverpool to do to close at 6 o'clock. The business man coincided with him and then said: "I understand you fully, I believe. You are a believer in unionism?"

"I am, sir. I am a staunch unionist, and I glory in the fact."

"And you believe, firmly and honestly, that we merchants should close our business houses at 6 o'clock?"

"I do, sir, and it is the only fair thing to do."

The merchant looked him squarely in the eyes, and smilingly said:

"In the name of common sense, why don't you practice what you preach? What is sauce for the goose ought to be sauce for the gander. Why don't you saloonkeepers close your places of business at 6 o'clock? Form a union of saloonkeepers, you lovely fraud, and shut up hereafter when we do."

This saloonkeeper dropped dead, and only revived when they threw water upon his prostrate body. Not used to the stuff. See.

Erlanger's store will be closed Wednesday, the 6th inst., on account of a holiday.

Warner, the well known shoe merchant, was elected to fill the vacancy. Mr. Warner will not take up the duties of the position until Mr. Fowler leaves, which will not be for several weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Fowler will reside in Toronto, much to the regret of their many friends in this city.

The purchase will place in operation another good pottery, and will give employment to a large number of men.

FELL DOWN STAIRS.

Mrs. J. C. Campbell Had a Very Hard Fall.

Mrs. J. A. Campbell, of 251 College street, while ascending the steps in the house of her son, W. H. Campbell, in Helanna Sunday evening, tripped and fell down the entire length. When she fell she was but one step from the top. A hasty examination prove no bones to be broken, but her back was badly sprained. She was brought to her home yesterday afternoon, and today is somewhat improved.

A SMALL FIRE

Gave the Department Horses Some Exercise.

A gasoline stove in the cook house of the residence of Edward Cookard, 288 Sixth street, exploded this morning, causing a portion of the wall and ceiling to burn. An alarm of fire from patrol box 26 brought out the department, and within a short time the flames were extinguished. The loss is estimated at $10.

More People Come to Town.

"And still they come," said an employee at the freight station this morning, when he saw two movings come in.

The first to come in today was N. Laird and family, who came from Pittsburg. This family at one time were residents of this place, but moved away a few years ago. The effects of Howard Welsch, of Toronto, were also received. The latter has rented a house in Market street.

Clara Is Better.

Clara, the three-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Williams, who fell from a second story window in her home in Second street, was running about this morning, and seemed as if nothing had happened. An examination by a physician last evening developed the fact that, aside from a severe shaking, nothing had happened. That the child was not killed is a miracle.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—The suit of Miss Elizabeth Deveny, of Marion, O., against Dr. O. D. Shay, of East Liverpool, in which she asked $10,000 for breach of promise, came to a sudden, but not altogether unexpected, end in the United States court here today.

The principals and their attorneys were present, and arrangements were soon made for a settlement. It provided that Doctor Shay is to pay Miss Deveny $2,500, and the costs in the case. No estimate of the costs is given out, but it will amount to a comfortable sum.

The Liverpool witnesses will return home this evening.

JESS KEPNER MUST PAY

John R. Martin Won That Old Suit Again.

THE VEHICLE ORDINANCE KILLED

Once More It Was Declared Unconstitutional—Other Cases Passed Upon by Circuit Court Yesterday Afternoon and Today.

LISBON, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—The verdict in the Martin-Kepner case, which gave to Ex-treasurer John R. Martin judgment against Ex-treasurer Jesse Kepner for $10,974, was affirmed by circuit court with costs.

The case was reviewed in full by Judge Frazier, dating back to the time when Martin qualified as treasurer.

"The pleadings taken as a whole," he said, "authorized the jury to find for Martin. If Martin's testimony was believed as to his count of the funds on the day after he qualified, then the jury was justified in finding for him. The case has two sides, and if we were called upon as triers we might have found a different verdict."

The vehicle tax ordinance passed by East Liverpool was for the second time declared unconstitutional. The case was that of George Miller, an expressman. He was compelled to pay $9.75 under the ordinance. In the lower court judgment was entered by agreement of all parties and the case taken up on error as a test case.

"In attempting to exact the payment of a license fee," said Judge Laubie, "from any one and every one who owned a horse in the city the city transcended its authority. The ordinance is invalid, and they consequently stand without authority to enforce it."

The motion to dismiss the case of Ohio against William McLaughlin, of Columbus, was sustained on the grounds that no jurisdiction was set up on error, and because there was no final judgment in the court below. The indictment charged McLaughlin with having fraudulently obtained signatures to notes on the value of a horse.

The case of B. S. Ambler against J. T. Brooks, of Salem, was dismissed, with the plaintiff to pay the costs.

Biggest Fountain in the World.

The greatest fountain in the world was turned on recently at Indianapolis and permitted to flow for an hour. It is one of the cascades now in the course of construction at the base of the soldiers' monument. The flow of water measures fully up to the contract, which calls for 7,000 gallons a minute at each of the two cascades as a regular thing, with a capacity under high pressure, however, that is much greater. The combined capacity of the world famous fountains at Versailles, hitherto the largest in the world, is 80,000 gallons an hour. They would make but feeble streams in comparison with the monument cascades, and yet the cost of running the French fountains is so great that the water is only turned on on gala days.

A Racy Hearing.

The case of Conner & Miller against Mr and Mrs. Thomas McLaughlin for money alleged to be due on a contract attracted a crowd to Squire Hill's court this afternoon. J. H. Brookes and W. B. Hill were the attorneys, and the trial was animated and amusing. Sockless Simpson, alias T. O. T., asserted that all the painters in town were on deck.

Remenyi's assistants are fit associates of this great violinist. Miss Louise M. Brehany is a charming soprano singer, with a voice rich in melody, and vocalists will be delighted with her selections. Mr. William Sauvlet is the master of the piano, and those who love instrumental music will have an evening of rare enjoyment.

HIT HIM HARD.

This Business Man "Killed" a Saloon Keeper.

Yes, "killed" him, figuratively speaking, and right here in East Liverpool. How? Let me tell you.

The two men were talking about unionism and early closing, and the saloonkeeper warmly argued that it was the very right thing for the merchants and business men of East Liverpool to do to close at 6 o'clock. The business man coincided with him and then said: "I understand you fully, I believe. You are a believer in unionism?"

"I am, sir. I am a staunch unionist, and I glory in the fact."

"And you believe, firmly and honestly, that we merchants should close our business houses at 6 o'clock?"

"I do, sir, and it is the only fair thing to do."

The merchant looked him squarely in the eyes, and smilingly said:

"In the name of common sense, why don't you practice what you preach? What is sauce for the goose ought to be sauce for the gander. Why don't you saloonkeepers close your places of business at 6 o'clock? Form a union of saloonkeepers, you lovely fraud, and shut up hereafter when we do."

This saloonkeeper dropped dead, and only revived when they threw water upon his prostrate body. Not used to the stuff. See.

Erlanger's store will be closed Wednesday, the 6th inst., on account of a holiday.

HUSTLING FOR A JOB

Postoffice Aspirants Are Working Hard.

ONE HAS A GREAT MANY FRIENDS

Who Have Put Their Names to a Little List He Always Carries In His Pocket. But There Are Others Who Say the Document Is Not Proof of Position.

It is quietly whispered among the politicians that the men who want to sit before the well arranged desk in the building at Washington and Fourth streets for the four years to follow the close of Postmaster Miskall's administration, are working with might and main to have the matter closed up in the very near future.

There are several candidates. Some who are known to everybody, and some who are carefully concealing the fact. Of the first named class one is popularly believed to carry, wherever he goes, a neatly type written document with abundant space for the signatures of those who endorse his candidacy. On this same document, so the story goes, can be found the name of some representative of every manufacturing concern in town, all of them urging the president to appoint the fortunate possessor of the petition. There are those who observe that paper with veneration, deeming it a power in politics, and then there are those who do not.

Of this number are the other candidates. They think the battle will be fought on its merits, and Congressman Tayler will name the winner. He will not, they think, do it before the congressional convention next June, and as a result they have taken heart and laugh at the prediction that the president will soon settle the question. None are uneasy, but all would feel better if they knew just how it is going to end.

The question of an election is being raised, and some of the candidates are willing to have it settled in that way, but that does not mean that all of them would smile with delight if they really believed the people were to select the postmaster.

GEM SCULPTURE.

Something About the Making of Cameos and Intaglios.

Gem sculpture, or lithoglyphics, is an art of great antiquity, having been practiced by the Babylonians, the Egyptians, the Hebrews and the Greeks. Afterward it sank into decadence, but in the fifteenth century was revived in Italy. It is an art that calls for great elegance of taste and much skill, for on a small stone, generally precious, designs are represented either in raised work, as cameos, or by being cut below the surface, as intaglios.

To cameos the term "minute sculpture" is indeed applicable, for since the days of Greek art celebrated statues have been copied in this way. The first intaglios were the scarabs, or beetle shaped signets, worn in rings by the Egyptians from a very remote period. One side of the stone was shaped like a beetle, the other side was flat, and the name of the king or wearer was cut into it. A hole was then drilled in the stone from end to end, and through it a strong wire was passed to hold it in position in a ring. The flat or seal side was always worn next to the finger, but when used as a seal it was turned.

In the art of gem sculpture the Greeks excelled all predecessors. The Etruscans, contemporary with the Greeks, also attained excellence in gem cutting, and it is said that "on these early gems of Etruscan or Greek origin may be read as in a book the forms of their religion and the subjects of popular interest in politics, song and fable for centuries."

Under Augustus gem sculpture flourished among the Romans, many of them possessing cameos and intaglios of great value, and cabinets of costly gems became numerous. It is said that Caesar sent six cabinets of rare gems to the temple of Venus.

There are many fine cameos and intaglios in the British museum. Among the finest of them accessible to the public are the "Cupid and Goose" intaglio, the "Dying Amazon," the "Laughing Fawn," "Bacchus" on red jasper, and the "Julius Caesar" of Dioscurides. In modern times gem sculpture has reached a high state of perfection and beauty. —Philadelphia Times.

THE FUNCTION OF ETHER.

Without It There Would Be No Light, Radiant Heat or Magnetism.

"Whatever difficulties we may have in forming a consistent idea of the constitution of the ether, there can be no doubt that the interplanetary and interstellar spaces are not empty, but are occupied by a material substance or body which is certainly the largest and probably the most uniform body of which we have any knowledge."

Such was the verdict pronounced some 20 years ago by James Clerk Maxwell, one of the very greatest of nineteenth century physicists, regarding the existence of an all pervading plenum in the universe in which every particle of tangible matter is immersed. And this verdict may be said to express the attitude of the entire philosophical world of our day. Without exception the authoritative physicists of our time accept this plenum as a verity and reason about it with something of the same confidence they manifest in speaking of "ponderable" matter or of energy. It is true there are those among them who are disposed to deny that this all pervading plenum merits the name of matter, but that it is a something, and a vastly important something at that, all are agreed. Without it, they allege, we should know nothing of light, of radiant heat, of electricity or magnetism. Without it there would probably be no such thing as gravitation—nay, they even hint that without this strange something, ether, there would be no such thing as matter in the universe. If these contentions of the modern physicist are justified, then this intangible ether is incomparably the most important as well as the "largest and most uniform substance or body" in the universe. Its discovery may well be looked upon as the most important feat of our century. —Henry Smith Williams, M. D., in Harper's Magazine.

A Good Story of Sheridan.

Sheridan once had occasion to call at a hairdresser's to order a wig. On being measured, the barber, who was a liberal soul, invited the orator to take some refreshment in an inner room. Here he regaled him with a bottle of port and showed so much hospitality that Sheridan's heart was touched.

When they rose from the table and were about separating, the latter, looking the barber full in the face, said, "On reflecting, I don't intend that you shall make my wig."

Astonished and with a blank visage, the other exclaimed: "Good heavens, Mr. Sheridan! How can I have displeased you?"

"Why, look you," said Sheridan, "you are an honest fellow, and, I repeat it, you shan't make my wig, for I never intended to pay for it. I'll go to another less worthy son of the craft."

LITTLE SKILL

Required to Be a Miner According to Chapman's Views.

"THE MINERS' FRIEND"

Tells Them They Can Quit if They Don't Like the Pay.

LOW WAGES IN JACKSON COUNTY

Caused the Great Strike of 1884-5—John McBride Refused to Pay Arbitrator's Salary.

To the Editor:

The Democratic press would have the public believe that H. L. Chapman is the best and truest friend the miners ever had, but we are inclined to believe that he is not their friend. We form this belief from his own language, which we find in his argument against the miners in 1886 (see Ohio Mining Report for 1888), from which is copied the following:

"Although the rule has been long established that the miners in the Hocking district can mine more coal per day, and consequently can earn more money per day than the miners in the Jackson district, and while this may be true, yet by reason of steadier work in the Jackson district, the miners at the end of the year fared better than in the Hocking valley."

Mr. Chapman of Ohio and DeArmitt of Pennsylvania must have graduated from the same school, where they study the benefits of cheap labor.

He further says: "If, however, it is established that the Hocking miner can earn more money by the same labor than his brother miner in the Jackson district, the supposed profits of the operators furnish no ground for an increase of wages. Because he who is paid the least is satisfied with his wages, and content to remain with old associations, wife, sweetheart and friends. None of them were under any compulsion. They voluntarily engaged in the business. They are equally free to leave the service and go to other coal fields. There is nothing in the occupation requiring much time in order to become a practical miner. Natives can learn the business in three or four months. It requires much more skill and apprenticeship to run a plow, care for live stock and drive a team of horses than is required to make an average miner. He has no capital invested, and takes no risk in the business."

Nothing short of a tyrant could think of using such language in order to deceive the arbitrator and defeat the miners in their demand for living wages.

In the same argument Mr. Chapman said:

"If the strikers succeed to advance the price of mining in Jackson county, the miners of the Hocking valley would soon make a demand for higher wages, and that would cause another strike, and possibly disturb, if not destroy the mining interests of the state."

Chapman requested the arbitrator to "let well enough alone," and the request was granted.

So disgusted was the Hon. John McBride (then president of the Ohio Miners' union) with Chapman's tactics and the decision, that he refused to pay the claims of the arbitrator for his labor. It is a matter of history that the persistent efforts of Mr. Chapman to keep down wages in Jackson county was the cause of the great Hocking valley strike in 1884-5. About three years ago the Massillon district miners suffered a reduction of 15 cents per ton, and are now working on the basis of Hocking valley, because the Jackson miners failed to re-establish the former differential existing between them and other Ohio coal fields. The miners can't afford to support Chapman for governor of the great mining state of Ohio.

SUPPRESSION

Has Been Attempted of Truth Concerning Business in Mexico.

There has been a great effort for a fortnight in Mexico to suppress the truth about the business matters in that country, and a struggle to put a cheerful face upon the fall in silver that seems to the silver financiers phenomenal.

The facts break out, however. Free silver does not mean independence of England, but slavery to her. It is found that the silver standard does not strengthen but is a weakness.

As it is in Mexico, so it would be here if we put the same yoke upon our necks.

It is our possession, not of silver, but of gold, that makes England depend upon us.

Gem sculpture, or lithoglyptics, is an art of great antiquity, having been practiced by the Babylonians, the Egyptians, the Hebrews and the Greeks. Afterward it sank into decadence, but in the fifteenth century was revived in Italy. It is an art that calls for great elegance of taste and much skill, for on a small stone, generally precious, designs are represented either in raised work, as cameos, or by being cut below the surface, as intaglios.

To cameos the term "minute sculpture" is indeed applicable, for since the days of Greek art celebrated statues have been copied in this way. The first intaglios were the scarabs, or beetle shaped signets, worn in rings by the Egyptians from a very remote period. One side of the stone was shaped like a beetle, the other side was flat, and the name of the king or wearer was cut into it. A hole was then drilled in the stone from end to end, and through it a strong wire was passed to hold it in position in a ring. The flat or seal side was always worn next to the finger, but when used as a seal it was turned.

In the art of gem sculpture the Greeks excelled all predecessors. The Etruscans, contemporary with the Greeks, also attained excellence in gem cutting, and it is said that "on these early gems of Etruscan or Greek origin may be read as in a book the forms of their religion and the subjects of popular interest in politics, song and fable for centuries."

Under Augustus gem sculpture flourished among the Romans, many of them possessing cameos and intaglios of great value, and cabinets of costly gems became numerous. It is said that Caesar sent six cabinets of rare gems to the temple of Venus.

There are many fine cameos and intaglios in the British museum. Among the finest of them accessible to the public are the "Cupid and Goose" intaglio, the "Dying Amazon," the "Laughing Fawn," "Bacchus" on red jasper, and the "Julius Caesar" of Dioscurides. In modern times gem sculpture has reached a high state of perfection and beauty. —Philadelphia Times.

THE FUNCTION OF ETHER.

Without It There Would Be No Light, Radiant Heat or Magnetism.

"Whatever difficulties we may have in forming a consistent idea of the constitution of the ether, there can be no doubt that the interplanetary and interstellar spaces are not empty, but are occupied by a material substance or body which is certainly the largest and probably the most uniform body of which we have any knowledge."

Such was the verdict pronounced some 20 years ago by James Clerk Maxwell, one of the very greatest of nineteenth century physicists, regarding the existence of an all pervading plenum in the universe in which every particle of tangible matter is immersed. And this verdict may be said to express the attitude of the entire philosophical world of our day. Without exception the authoritative physicists of our time accept this plenum as a verity and reason about it with something of the same confidence they manifest in speaking of "ponderable" matter or of energy. It is true there are those among them who are disposed to deny that this all pervading plenum merits the name of matter, but that it is a something, and a vastly important something at that, all are agreed. Without it, they allege, we should know nothing of light, of radiant heat, of electricity or magnetism. Without it there would probably be no such thing as gravitation—nay, they even hint that without this strange something, ether, there would be no such thing as matter in the universe. If these contentions of the modern physicist are justified, then this intangible ether is incomparably the most important as well as the "largest and most uniform substance or body" in the universe. Its discovery may well be looked upon as the most important feat of our century. —Henry Smith Williams, M. D., in Harper's Magazine.

A Good Story of Sheridan.

Sheridan once had occasion to call at a hairdresser's to order a wig. On being measured, the barber, who was a liberal soul, invited the orator to take some refreshment in an inner room. Here he regaled him with a bottle of port and showed so much hospitality that Sheridan's heart was touched.

When they rose from the table and were about separating, the latter, looking the barber full in the face, said, "On reflecting, I don't intend that you shall make my wig."

Astonished and with a blank visage, the other exclaimed: "Good heavens, Mr. Sheridan! How can I have displeased you?"

"Why, look you," said Sheridan, "you are an honest fellow, and I repeat it, you shan't make my wig, for I never intended to pay for it. I'll go to another less worthy son of the craft."

Murphy Offers to Surrender.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 5.—Captain Edward Murphy of the steamer Laurada, who failed to appear for trial on the charge of filibustering on June 8, went before Judge Bradford and offered to surrender himself and give new bail. The court decided upon Thursday for a hearing.

LITTLE SKILL

Required to Be a Miner According to Chapman's Views.

"THE MINERS' FRIEND"

Tells Them They Can Quit if They Don't Like the Pay.

LOW WAGES IN JACKSON COUNTY

Caused the Great Strike of 1884-5—John McBride Refused to Pay Arbitrator's Salary.

To the Editor:

The Democratic press would have the public believe that H. L. Chapman is the best and truest friend the miners ever had, but we are inclined to believe that he is not their friend. We form this belief from his own language, which we find in his argument against the miners in 1886 (see Ohio Mining Report for 1888), from which is copied the following:

"Although the rule has been long established that the miners in the Hocking district can mine more coal per day, and consequently can earn more money per day than the miners in the Jackson district, and while this may be true, yet by reason of steadier work in the Jackson district, the miners at the end of the year fared better than in the Hocking valley."

Mr. Chapman of Ohio and DeArmitt of Pennsylvania must have graduated from the same school, where they study the benefits of cheap labor.

He further says: "If, however, it is established that the Hocking miner can earn more money by the same labor than his brother miner in the Jackson district, the supposed profits of the operators furnish no ground for an increase of wages. Because he who is paid the least is satisfied with his wages, and content to remain with old associations, wife, sweetheart and friends. None of them were under any compulsion. They voluntarily engaged in the business. They are equally free to leave the service and go to other coal fields. There is nothing in the occupation requiring much time in order to become a practical miner. Natives can learn the business in three or four months. It requires much more skill and apprenticeship to run a plow, care for live stock and drive a team of horses than is required to make an average miner. He has no capital invested, and takes no risk in the business."

Nothing short of a tyrant could think of using such language in order to deceive the arbitrator and defeat the miners in their demand for living wages.

In the same argument Mr. Chapman said:

"If the strikers succeed to advance the price of mining in Jackson county, the miners of the Hocking valley would soon make a demand for higher wages, and that would cause another strike, and possibly disturb, if not destroy the mining interests of the state."

Chapman requested the arbitrator to "let well enough alone," and the request was granted.

So disgusted was the Hon. John McBride (then president of the Ohio Miners' union) with Chapman's tactics and the decision, that he refused to pay the claims of the arbitrator for his labor. It is a matter of history that the persistent efforts of Mr. Chapman to keep down wages in Jackson county was the cause of the great Hocking valley strike in 1884-5. About three years ago the Massillon district miners suffered a reduction of 15 cents per ton, and are now working on the basis of Hocking valley, because the Jackson miners failed to re-establish the former differential existing between them and other Ohio coal fields. The miners can't afford to support Chapman for governor of the great mining state of Ohio.

SUPPRESSION

Has Been Attempted of Truth Concerning Business in Mexico.

There has been a great effort for a fortnight in Mexico to suppress the truth about the business matters in that country, and a struggle to put a cheerful face upon the fall in silver that seems to the silver financiers phenomenal.

The facts break out, however. Free silver does not mean independence of England, but slavery to her. It is found that the silver standard does not strengthen but is a weakness.

As it is in Mexico, so it would be here if we put the same yoke upon our necks.

It is our possession, not of silver, but of gold, that makes England depend upon us.

FUN IN THIS ROAD RACE

Colored Wheelmen Will Ride For Glory

AND A NICE LITTLE PURSE

There Has Been a Great Deal of Rivalry, and It Was Decided to Settle It For All Time—The Course Is Not Long, But Very Rough.

The colored wheelmen of the city next Tuesday afternoon will give a road race from the city to Wellsville and return for a purse of $10.

The contestants are Fred Howard, Robert MacIntree, George Washington and George Brown, while W. H. Prier will act as referee and Walter Allen as starter.

The start and finish will be made at the monument in the Diamond and each rider will be compelled to register in Wellsville.

There is a great deal of dispute among the contestants as to who is the best man, and the purse was made up by each party putting in $2.50. The race will be for the colored championship of the city, and it is expected fast time will be made.

THEY WERE MARRIED.

Then the Bride and Groom Went to Their Home in Indiana.

Francis B. Calhoun and Miss Ida Adelia Kennedy were married this morning at 8 o'clock by Prof. O. S. Reed, at that gentleman's residence in Woodbine avenue. The happy couple left on the early train for Medenaville, Ind., where they will in future reside.

Mr. Calhoun has been employed here for some time, and his bride was a resident of East Palestine, but has been here for some time.

Only a Few More.

Saturday, Oct. 16, will be the closing day of the Pittsburg exposition. Only a few more excursions for that event will be run via Pennsylvania line.

The dates for the last regular Thursday excursions are Oct. 7, and 14. In addition to these excursions, special low rate tickets to Pittsburg will also be sold over Pennsylvania lines Saturdays, Oct. 9 and 16, from East Liverpool.

The Pittsburg Exposition of 1897 is unusually attractive. Special features are numerous, and every visitor is highly pleased. Brooke's famous Chicago Marine band, the band that plays popular airs, will be at the Expo. until the evening of Oct. 9. The musical program until that date includes vocal selections by Miss Sibyl Sammis, the wonderful soprano. During the week beginning Oct. 4, the wonderful educated horse, "Jim Key," will be one of the attractions. This remarkable horse writes, plays cards, tells fortunes and performs a great many marvelous things. Saturday, Oct. 9, will be Commercial Travelers' day, with a special program for the "jolly drummers."

Sousa and his famous band will furnish the music for the last week, commencing Oct. 11. It will be fine.

The very low rate at which the trip to the Expo. may be made via Pennsylvania lines will enable people from this locality to see the interesting and instructive display, and enjoy the grand music and special attractions at small expense. For particulars apply to Adam Hill, ticket agent, East Liverpool.

Making Rapid Progress.

Work on the Sebring pottery in East End is progressing rapidly, and there is no reason to believe that it will not be ready for operation at the appointed time. The walls are rising higher each day, and a great deal of machinery has been already taken to the plant.

Selling Real Estate.

A dealer is responsible for the statement that more real estate changed hands in this city last week than at any time of an equal number of days in three years. He said that he knew of a number of deals which have not yet been closed, but will be before Nov. 1.

To Be Married.

A number of persons in the city have received invitations to the wedding of Jacob Stein and Miss Fannie Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Miller, Oct. 28, at 7:30 o'clock, in the Masonic rooms at Charleroi, Pa. Mr. Stein is a well-known business man of this city.

SOLLY SMITH CHAMPION.

He Wrestled the Title From George Dixon at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5.—Solly Smith of Los Angeles was given the decision over George Dixon of Boston in a 20-round fight last night. The match was virtually for the championship of the featherweight class and Smith is now at the top.

The fight was not a remarkably fast one, the men taking no chances except in two or three rounds, when Dixon attempted to force matters. Smith, however, who has greatly improved since he met Dixon, had all the better of the infighting, using his right with great effect both on the body and head. Smith was cool throughout the fight, and came out without a mark of any kind. His blocking and ducking of Dixon's leads were the features of the fight and kept him out of harm's way.

TEMPLE CUP GAMES.

Boston Took the First of the Series From Baltimore.

BOSTON, Oct. 5.—The new champions took the first game for the Temple cup, defeating the Baltimore in a close contest, more through a combination of lucky hits and daring base running, assisted by darkness in the last two innings, than by any great superiority of play. The Orioles batted Nichols out of the box. The score:

At Boston—
Boston.....3 0 0 1 2 5 0 2 *—3 12 4
Baltimore.....4 0 1 0 2 3 2 0 0—12 20 4
Batteries—Nichols, Lewis and Bergen; Nops and Clarke. Umpires—Emslie and Hurst. Attendance, 10,000.

SAVED BY A ROADWAY.

The Fire Near Chicago Junction, O., Finally Blocked.

CHICAGO JUNCTION, Oct. 5.—The fire on the New Haven marsh is still spreading. Though no special damage has resulted within the past few hours, close to 350 acres have been burned over. Nothing but a roadway prevents the fire from entering a new territory, which is far more valuable than the tract of land already burned.

Being covered with many buildings and valuable crops farmers are hauling water to be used in case the flames get across the roadway. Everything possible is being done to keep the fire within a certain territory, but unless rain comes soon dire results will surely follow.

New Minister to Uruguay.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The president has made three appointments: William R. Finch of Wisconsin, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Paraguay and Uruguay; Alvin Smith of Ohio, to be consul at Trinidad.

Klondyke

The Land of Golden Nuggets.

JOSEPH LADUE,

the new Bonanza King of the Klondyke Gold Regions, gives the facts. His book reads like "The Arabian Nights," BUT Joseph Ladue KNOWS whereof he writes. He was the first man on the spot when the first gold was discovered last August, 1896. He located one rich claim and immediately purchased twelve others at a low price before their value was known. He has refused $100,000 for any ONE of these claims, as they are rich with virgin gold nuggets, beyond the dream of avarice. Joseph Ladue then at the mouth of the Klondyke and Yukon Rivers, by erecting the first house in the region in September, one month after the gold was first discovered. He bought 178 acres from the government on the city site where his town lots 150x50 are now selling for $5,000 each.

Mr. Ladue was fortunate enough to be successful in his trading post investments to have on hand ample capital to carry out his plans, and there is no man living who is better posted on Alaska and the great North West Territories than Mr. Joseph Ladue. He has just returned from that country to his old home in Schuler Falls, N. Y., where he passed a large portion of his boyhood and early manhood. Mr. Ladue left his home nearly twenty years ago to seek his fortune in the west going first to the Black Hills, where he was successful in gold mining, thence to Arizona and the Pacific coast and finally located in Alaska and the northwest, where he has covered almost the entire country since 1882. Mr. Ladue is a typical pioneer: strong, hardy and resolute—a man of iron as one must needs be to go through the hardships he has and come out with a constitution unbroken and unimpaired at about the age of 43. Mr. Ladue has not only worked his muscles to good advantage to himself with the result of an abundance of the world's goods, far beyond the dreams of men, but he has evidently all this time been closely observing the conditions of that strange country—the Yukon Valley—which has so suddenly become one of the great centers upon which human interest throughout the world is focussed.

When the wonderful stories began to come down from the Yukon country it was naturally concluded that it was at least half exaggeration. That any such amount of gold could be taken in so short a time from a country like that under the most most unfavorable conditions was held to be incredible. But when the great bags of virgin gold began to be poured out upon mint counters in San Francisco under the eyes of the whole world (for modern journalism does this, annihilating time and space) people began to wonder and the wonder grew day by day as the real facts were disclosed, and now people who are well informed as to the facts declare that half the truth has not been told of the golden treasures of the Yukon Valley.

As we have already said, there is no man today alive who knows more about this wonderful country than does Mr. Ladue. What makes his talk of it specially interesting and reliable is the fact that his knowledge of it is practical. It has not been gained from hearsay nor from desultory visits made now and then at certain favorable seasons of the year, but from steady living there through the long summer days and the long winter nights, year in and year out for 15 years, where he now owns the best mining claims on the Klondyke and its tributaries.

In presenting his book to the public we do so knowing that it is by an authority on the subject of which he writes. His first work entitled

"Klondyke Nuggets"

is a brief description of the new gold regions, and anyone desiring authentic information should not fail to avail themselves of our

FUN IN THIS ROAD RACE

Colored Wheelmen Will Ride For Glory

AND A NICE LITTLE PURSE

There Has Been a Great Deal of Rivalry, and It Was Decided to Settle It For All Time—The Course Is Not Long, But Very Rough.

The colored wheelmen of the city next Tuesday afternoon will give a road race from the city to Wellsville and return for a purse of $10.

The contestants are Fred Howard, Robert Macilree, George Washington and George Brown, while W. H. Prier will act as referee and Walter Allen as starter.

The start and finish will be made at the monument in the Diamond and each rider will be compelled to register in Wellsville.

There is a great deal of dispute among the contestants as to who is the best man, and the purse was made up by each party putting in $2.50. The race will be for the colored championship of the city, and it is expected fast time will be made.

THEY WERE MARRIED.

Then the Bride and Groom Went to Their Home in Indiana.

Francis B. Calhoun and Miss Ida Adelia Kennedy were married this morning at 8 o'clock by Prof. O. S. Reed, at that gentleman's residence in Woodbine avenue. The happy couple left on the early train for Medenaville, Ind., where they will in future reside.

Mr. Calhoun has been employed here for some time, and his bride was a resident of East Palestine, but has been here for some time.

Only a Few More.

Saturday, Oct. 16, will be the closing day of the Pittsburgh exposition. Only a few more excursions for that event will be run via Pennsylvania line.

The dates for the last regular Thursday excursions are Oct. 7, and 14. In addition to these excursions, special low rate tickets to Pittsburg will also be sold over Pennsylvania lines Saturdays, Oct. 9 and 16, from East Liverpool.

The Pittsburgh Exposition of 1897 is unusually attractive. Special features are numerous, and every visitor is highly pleased. Brooke's famous Chicago Marine band, the band that plays popular airs, will be at the Expo. until the evening of Oct. 9. The musical program until that date includes vocal selections by Miss Sibyl Sammis, the wonderful soprano. During the week beginning Oct. 4, the wonderful educated horse, "Jim Key," will be one of the attractions. This remarkable horse writes, plays cards, tells fortunes and performs a great many marvelous things. Saturday, Oct. 9, will be Commercial Travelers' day, with a special program for the "jolly drummers."

Sousa and his famous band will furnish the music for the last week, commencing Oct. 11. It will be fine.

The very low rate at which the trip to the Expo. may be made via Pennsylvania lines will enable people from this locality to see the interesting and instructive display, and enjoy the grand music and special attractions at small expense. For particulars apply to Adam Hill, ticket agent, East Liverpool.

Making Rapid Progress.

Work on the Sebring pottery in East End is progressing rapidly, and there is no reason to believe that it will not be ready for operation at the appointed time. The walls are rising higher each day, and a great deal of machinery has been already taken to the plant.

Selling Real Estate.

A dealer is responsible for the statement that more real estate changed hands in this city last week than at any time of an equal number of days in three years. He said that he knew of a number of deals which have not yet been closed, but will be before Nov. 1.

To Be Married.

A number of persons in the city have received invitations to the wedding of Jacob Stein and Miss Fannie Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Miller, Oct. 28, at 7:30 o'clock, in the Masonic rooms at Charleroi, Pa. Mr. Stein is a well-known business man of this city.

Cohen.

Cohen, the clothier, will close his business house on Wednesday, Oct. 6, on account of holiday, Yom Kippor. *

FINE TOP COATS, the regular $15 quality, for $10 this week at Erlanger's. *

SOLO SMITH CHAMPION.

He Wrestled the Title From George Dixon at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5.—Solo Smith of Los Angeles was given the decision over George Dixon of Boston in a 20-round fight last night. The match was virtually for the championship of the featherweight class and Smith is now at the top.

The fight was not a remarkably fast one, the men taking no chances except in two or three rounds, when Dixon attempted to force matters. Smith, however, who has greatly improved since he met Dixon, had all the better of the infighting, using his right with great effect both on the body and head. Smith was cool throughout the fight, and came out without a mark of any kind. His blocking and ducking of Dixon's leads were the features of the fight and kept him out of harm's way.

TEMPLE CUP GAMES.

Boston Took the First of the Series From Baltimore.

BOSTON, Oct. 5.—The new champions took the first game for the Temple cup, defeating the Baltimore in a close contest, more through a combination of lucky hits and daring base running, assisted by darkness in the last two innings, than by any great superiority of play. The Orioles batted Nichols out of the box. The score:

At Boston—
Boston.....3 0 0 1 2 5 0 2 *—312 4
Baltimore....4 0 1 0 2 3 2 0 0—122 4
Batteries—Nichols, Lewis and Bergen; Nops and Clarke. Umpires—Emslie and Hurst. Attendance, 10,000.

SAVED BY A ROADWAY.

The Fire Near Chicago Junction, O., Finally Blocked.

CHICAGO JUNCTION, Oct. 5.—The fire on the New Haven marsh is still spreading. Though no special damage has resulted within the past few hours, close to 350 acres have been burned over. Nothing but a roadway prevents the fire from entering a new territory, which is far more valuable than the tract of land already burned.

Being covered with many buildings and valuable crops farmers are hauling water to be used in case the flames get across the roadway. Everything possible is being done to keep the fire within a certain territory, but unless rain comes soon dire results will surely follow.

New Minister to Uruguay.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The president has made three appointments: William R. Finch of Wisconsin, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Paraguay and Uruguay; Alvin Smith of Ohio, to be consul at Trinidad.

Troops Reach Harrisburg.

HARRISBURG, Oct. 5.—The first battalion of the Eight regiment, in command of Major E. B. Watts of Carlisle, and the Governor's troop, commanded by Captain Fred M. Ott, reached Harrisburg from Hazleton in a special train.

Ex-United States Senator Dead.

Klondyke

The Land of Golden Nuggets.

JOSEPH LADUE,

the new Bonanza King of the Klondyke Gold Regions, gives the facts. His book reads like "The Arabian Nights," BUT Joseph Ladue KNOWS whereof he writes. He was the first man on the spot when the first gold was discovered last August, 1896. He located one rich claim and immediately purchased twelve others at a low price before their value was known. He has refused $100,000 for any ONE of these claims, as they are rich with virgin gold nuggets, beyond the dream of avarice. Joseph Ladue then at the mouth of the Klondyke and Yukon Rivers, by erecting the first house in the region in September, one month after the gold was first discovered. He bought 178 acres from the government on the city site where his town lots 150x30 are now selling for $5,000 each.

Mr. Ladue was fortunate enough to be successful in his trading post investments to have on hand ample capital to carry out his plans, and there is no man living who is better posted on Alaska and the great North West Territories than Mr. Joseph Ladue. He has just returned from that country to his old home in Schuler Falls, N. Y., where he passed a large portion of his boyhood and early manhood. Mr. Ladue left his home nearly twenty years ago to seek his fortune in the west going first to the Black Hills, where he was successful in gold mining, thence to Arizona and the Pacific coast and finally located in Alaska and the northwest, where he has covered almost the entire country since 1882. Mr. Ladue is a typical pioneer: strong, hardy and resolute—a man of iron as one must needs be to go through the hardships he has and come out with a constitution unbroken and unimpaired at about the age of 43. Mr. Ladue has not only worked his muscles to good advantage to himself with the result of an abundance of the world's goods, far beyond the dreams of men, but he has evidently all this time been closely observing the conditions of that strange country—the Yukon Valley—which has so suddenly become one of the great centers upon which human interest throughout the world is focussed.

When the wonderful stories began to come down from the Yukon country it was naturally concluded that it was at least half exaggeration. That any such amount of gold could be taken in so short a time from a country like that under the most most unfavorable conditions was held to be incredible. But when the great bags of virgin gold began to be poured out upon mint counters in San Francisco under the eyes of the whole world (for modern journalism does this, annihilating time and space) people began to wonder and the wonder grew day by day as the real facts were disclosed, and now people who are well informed as to the facts declare that half the truth has not been told of the golden treasures of the Yukon Valley.

As we have already said, there is no man today alive who knows more about this wonderful country than does Mr. Ladue. What makes his talk of it specially interesting and reliable is the fact that his knowledge of it is practical. It has not been gained from hearsay nor from desultory visits made now and then at certain favorable seasons of the year, but from steady living there through the long summer days and the long winter nights, year in and year out for 15 years, where he now owns the best mining claims on the Klondyke and its tributaries.

In presenting his book to the public we do so knowing that it is by an authority on the subject of which he writes. His first work entitled

"Klondyke Nuggets"

is a brief description of the new gold regions, and anyone desiring authentic information should not fail to avail themselves of our
